Mr. Blaine Strolling on the Strand Looking at the Sights.

HE DOESN'T CARE TO DISCUSS POLITICS.

ge Will Leave for the Isle of Wight the Latter Part of the Week and Visit the Great Docks.

LONDON, June 20 .- [Special.]-The crush in London, June 20. —[Special.]—The crush in London today is something unbearable. The streets are simply swarming with people. In the Strand this morning, elbowing his way through the dense crowd, was James G. Blaine, through the dense crowd, was James G. Blaine, riswing the varied scenes with the delight of a schoolboy. Mr. Blaine is looking the picture of health, and in a brief chat with your correspondent, as he picked his way along the Strand, Mr. Blaine told how delighted he was with his visit to England and with what pleasures anticipated to have a way a great was a strained to the strain of the str the his visit to England and with what pleasure he anticipated tomorrow's great spectacle.

H. Blaine declined to make any remarks in meand to politics at home; but smiled grimly when asked if he did not think the rebel flag incident, the details of which have been cabled over the world, make a strong republican campaign document in the next election. Mr. Blaine wouldn't, however, express any opinion of the matter. Although there were so many notable people in London, Mr. Blaine has not by any means been forgotten, and ever since his arri-val here has been visited by a number of promment people, and has received many invita-Very few if any of these have been accepted, it being Mr. Blaine's intention to go to the Isle of Wight towards the end of the week. It was true that the company was perfectly solvent, but it could not utilize the stock, machinery and huildings to meet notes and cancel debts. If meditors of the company showed a disposition to be lenient, their claims would be paid in fall, and Sloan & Sons would not lose a dollar through indorsing outstanding paper and brough indorsing outstanding paper and rould be relieved to a considerable extent.

GOULD'S GENEROSITY.

The Millionaire Makes a Donation to Mount

Washington, June 20.—Mount Vernon estate, where the remains of Washington lie entombed, has been enlarged by the addition of a tract of 33\(^3\) acres on the north side near the old Washington mansion. It was secured through the generosity of Jay Gould. While at his way up the Potomac from Fortress Montoe recently, in his yacht "Atlanta," Mr. Gould stopped at Mount Vernon and was shown around the grounds. He expressed great interest in the place and the admirable manner in which it is cared for. In the course of conversation the superintendent remarked that the land in question was much needed to protect the property from encroachment. Mr. protect the property from encroachment. Mr. Gould immediately authorized the purchase of the land at his expense, and it has been bought and turned over to the Mount Vernon regents. The price paid is not known.

Proceedings of the Amalgamated Association at Pittsburg.

Proceedings of the Amalgamated Association at Pittsburg.

Pritsburg, Pa., June 20.—The session of the amalgamated association today was one of the most important yet held. The committee on constitution submitted its report, making several recommendations, which show that the association is determined to strengthen its ranks so as to rest on such a firm foundation that they will have no further fear of encroachments from the Knights of Labor. The report recommended that the clause reading, "Working by the ton," be so arranged that members working by the day may also become members of the association. This will take in nearly everybody employed about the mill, and will increase the membership of the organization several thousand. The proposition in reference to prohibiting members of the Knights of Labor from joining the association was amended so as to read: "On and after April I. 1888, no member of this associasion can become a member of the Knights of Labor."

The recommendation that mills be shut down for two weeks during the summer, failed to pass. With these amendments and changes the report, after a long discussion, was adopted. After receiving the report of the committee on president and other officers, and transacting some routine business, the convention adjourned. Final adjournment will prob-

Members of the committee were rather chary about making public what stand they pro to posedtake onthe wage question. B. F. Jones was of this number, but said as he cast a sidelong glance at a scale which he held in his hand: "It is perfectly absurd for the amalgamated association to ask for this scale." The committee got down to work at 11 o'clock this afteonoon. It was learned, after adjournment of the committee, that it had been decided to take a stand not to grant 10 per cent advance in wages, not even to puddlers. With this understanding the committee will meet the conference committee of the amalgamated association tomorrow.

A Trial that Excites Much.

Augusta, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—It will be remembered that on April 16th last, quite a lively rencounter occurred on Jackson street between Messrs. W. T. Davidson, a prominent lawyer, and O. H. P. Scott, a cotton buyer for Augusta factory. Scott was the attacking party, and when the grand jury met he was indicted for assault and battery. Today the case came up in the city court, and has occupied that tribunal all day, and will probably occupy it all of tomorrow. Davidson is represented by Solicitor C. H. Cohen, and Mr. Scott by Messrs. W. T. Gary, M. P. Carroll, M. P. Foster, P. J. Sullivan and Judge Claiborne Snead. The facts of the case seem to be as follows:

be as follows:
Scott was left a house and lot and a goodly Scott was left a house and lot and a goodly sum of money by a wealthy negro woman who died recently. Some trouble arose between him and a neighbor as to the location of a fence between the two lots. The neighbor employed Davidson to take charge the case, and when it came up for a hearing, it seems Davidson accused Scott of spending most of his time in the company of a negress, although he is married and has children. Davidson also asserted that he had been seen disrobed in the woman's house. Scott met him that afternoon and immediately commenced striking him over the head with a cane. Both parties were badly worsted at the time.

The courtroon was well-filled all day and the case is exciting much interest.

CREDITORS ASKING FOR A RECEIVER.

Kershaw Makes Application for Dissolut of Partnership-A Call Issued for a Meeting of the Creditors.

CHICAGO, June 20.-Charles J. Kershaw filed a bill in the superior court this morning against his partners, Dewar & Eggleston. The bill asks to have the partnership dis-solved, and an accounting order granted and a receiver appointed. The court appointed Porteus T. B. Wear, receiver, and that gentleman filed a $50,000 bond.

Joseph F. Hill and Adolph Hertzheim, of Milwaukee, filed a bill of complaint against C. J. Kershaw & Co., in the United States district court today. The suit is brought in be-half of all the creditors of the limited partnership of Kershaw & Co. who may elect to come in under this bill and become parties to the suit. The bill alleges that Kershaw & Co. contracted to deliver large quantities of wheat in May, June and July, 1887, and incurred pecuniary obligations to the sum of $1,000,000, that its capital stock, property, assets and effects were of much less value than the mount of its debts and liabilities, and wholly nsufficient to pay the same in full, or pay nore than 30 cents on the dollar, and that the firm, for several days prior thereto, had great difficulty in paying its debts, and that its in-solvency was then known to members of the solvency was then known to members of the firm.

The bill further says that petitioners have had large transactions with the firm, and that on June 16th the copartnership was indebted to them in the sum of $130,000. It is charged that Kershaw & Co. unlawfully paid the American Exchange bank about $500,000; Irwin, Green & Co., $200,000; Charles B. Eggleston, special partner, $100,000; David W. Irwin, $100,000, and Alexander L. Dewar, $200,000.

Irwin, $100,000, and Alexander L. Dewar, $200,000.

The petitioners ask that a receiver be appointed. They also charge that the firm of Kershaw & Co. has in its possession grain and assets to the amount of $500,000, and say unless a receiver is at once appointed the property is liable to be seized. The bill also says that the sum of $500,000 is due the American Exchange National bank and Irwin, Green & Co., which is liable to be garnisheed; that certain debtors deposited in the American Exchange National bank, about June 16th, $600,000, and that of that amount the bank has between $300,000 and $400,000 in its vaults.

The bill also asks that Kershaw & Co., the American Exchange National bank; D. W. Irwin and A. L. Dewar, their attorneys or agents, be enjoined from prying to any person or persons any money that may come into its possession.

when the announcement was made that a receiver had been appointed for C. J. Kershaw & Co., the meeting of creditors which was to have taken place this afternoon, was immediately declared off. The creditors will meet to hear the report of the receiver as soon as he can arrive at some conclusion as to assets and liabilities of the bankrupt firm. This may take a week. There has never been a failure on the board of trade so full of complication as this.

Particulars of the Trade Between Ives, Stayner & Co. and Mr. Garrett.

Particulars of the Trade Between Ives.

Stayner & Co. and Mr. Garrett.

Cincinnati, June 20.—The CommercialGazette today prints a three-column special from New York, purporting to give the inside history of the Baltimore and Ohio deal with Ives, Stayner & Co. The main point of the story is that Ives and Stayner made a contract with Mr. Garrett by which they were to get a controlling interest in the Baltimore and Ohio for about $18,000,000; that they have paid Mr.
Garrett $20,000 in cash, $100,000 in certified checks and 15,800 shares of Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton preferred stock, and that they have promised to make good the balance of an overdue payment of $6,000,000 and take up Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton preferred stock out of the proceeds arising from their acquisition and consolidation of narrow gauge roads in Ohio and Indiana. The final outcome is to be a continuous road from Baltimore to St. Louis, using the Baltimore and Ohio to Parkersburg, and narrow gauges changed to St. Louis, using the Batthiner and of the Parkersburg, and narrow gauges changed to standard gauge from Parkersburg to Indianapolis and Vandalia, thence to St. Louis.

The special goes on to say that it is proposed at a meeting to be held here tomorrow to authorize the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton discreters to divert from its original purpose directory to divert from its original purpose the proceeds of the preferred stock authorized in September last for redeeming bonds and guaranteed stocks so that these proceeds may be used for the general purposes of the com-be used for the general purposes of the company.

The Commercial-Gazette says, editorially:
If they (the new owners of the Cinciunati, Hamilton and Dayton) are able, to go on, gather in the Baltimore and Ohio and employ that as they have the Cinciunati, Hamilton and Dayton, the country will have the benefit of about as audacious a job of adventurers' financiering as has ever been undertaken. There is this peculiarity that modifies the matter to a considerable extent: Nearly the whole of the stock of the Cinciunati, Hamilton and Dayton is held by parties who are engaged in the manipulations. Whether the few small stockholders left will take any interest in the action tomorrow remains to be seen. The meeting tomorrow is to take action on the matter as stated above, and also to vote upon the construction or lease of the breach line from Hamilton to Middletown, and upon guaranteeing the stock of the United Railways Terminal company, of Cinciunati.

folk and Western.

New York, June 20.—The first mortgage bondholders' committee of the Shenandoah Valley railroad announced today that they accepted the proposition made by the Norfolk and Western railroad. The terms of the proposition provide for the purchase of the property at foreclosure, and the formation of a new company which will issue $5,100,000 first mortgage bonds, $8,000,000 preferred stock, and common stock to the amount of the old stock outstanding. The Norfolk and Western agree to lease the Shenandoah Valley for 999 years, and pay over not less than 30 per cent of the gross earnings, but always as much as the interest on the first mortgage bonds, and indorses the bonds with this stipulation.

THE BISHOP'S PALACE.

The Savannah Catholics to Erect a New House.

Savannah, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—During the coming fall, work will be begun on a new episcopal palace for the bishop and clergy of the cathedral of Our Lady of Perpetual Help. Mr. E. J. Baldwin, a prominent Baltimore architect, is in the city today, and has laid plans before the building committee of the parish for consideration. Mr. Baldwin was the architect of the cathedral, and as the new residence is to adjoin the cathedral, it must harmonize in style. He was therefore selected, instead of a Savannah architect. The palace will be in the rear of the cathedral, at Lincoln and Harris streets. It will be of brick, with stene trimmings, four stories high, fifty feet front on Harris street and seventy feet depth on Lincoln street. The style will be heavy and stately, to conform to the cathedral, with which it will be connected by a covered gallery leading through a private chapel. The cost of building will be upwards of $25,000. The Savannah Catholics to Erect a New Middle Etown, N. Y., June 20.—Among the causes on the calendar of the Orange County circuit, Justice Willard Bartlett presiding, to open at Goshen on Monday next, is that of Olive Brower, by her father and guardian, Herman Brower, against John W. Baird for $10,000 damages for slander. Miss Brower, the plaintiff in the case, and a pretty and intelligent girl of $17 years, was today discharged convalescent from the State Homocopathic asylum for the msane in this place, where she has been under treatment for five months past. heir of a wealthy resident of this town recently deceased.

Young Baird at one time paid marked attentions to Miss Brower, and, her friends say, was desirous of marrying her. But some time last fall the young lady decided to reject his further attentions and drop his acquaintance. From this time on, it is alleged, the defendant persecuted her by sending annoying letters inviting her to meet him under improper circumstances, and finally by circulating seandalous stories about her. His persecutions culminated, as the complaint in the case alleges, on the evening of January 3 last, when he accosted her in the public street and in the presence of many of her young friends, with insulting and injurious language. The humiliated and grief-stricken girl fied from his persecutions to her home, arriving there in a state of uncontrollable frenzy, and upbraiding her former lover for his cruel conduct. She got held of a penknife and attempted to kill herself, but was prevented from doing further injury than gashing one arm and lacerating her throat. The next morning she was taken to the acylum a raving maniac. After long and patient treatment she comes from the institution with her mind restored. The Queen Gives a Private Audience to United States Minister Phelps-The Crowds in London.

LONDON, June 20 .- The city is already show ing signs of being crowded in anticipation of orrow. Throngs in the streets are more numerous than seen at any time by the present generation. In some parts of the town the crush of sight-seers impedes the traffic in the streets. The queen this morning drove from the castle at Windsor to the railway station and came to London on a special train. She drove from the station here to Buckingham palace. Crowds of people lined the entire route in town and displayed the greatest en-thusiasm. Her majesty appeared delighted at the loyalty exhibited and bowed and smiled in every direction. Decorations with banners, mottoes and flags are increasing enormously, and when done promises to eclipse anything of the kind ever before attempted in England. A stranger in London today would imagine the whole population out on a holiday. The weather is beautiful. The sun is shining brightly.

Three hundred peers and other prominent persons belonging to the Roman Catholic church have returned tickets entitling them in seats in Westminster Abbey tomorrow durting the jubilee service.

The police today, acting under supervision of Colonel Majendie, chief inspector of explosives, and other experts, made a thorough search of Westminster Abbey as a precaution against dynamite outrages tomorrow, and every vault, corner and point in the edifice where it is possible to hide anything was inspected and overhauled, especially powerful lamps being used in the examination of darker places. Nothing was found. When the examination was finished, the abbey was turned over to the police for protection, and it is now occupied and guarded by them. Every civilian is excluded, even workmen who have been employed in making temporary alterations for tomorrow's event. Two peers attempted to enter the abbey, but were prevented by police.

The queen this afternoon received Phelps, United States minister, at Buckingham palace, for the purpose of allowing him to present President Cleveland's jubilee congratulations. Mr. Phelps was accorded a private audience. The queen expressed the warmest thanks for the president's congratulations.

Mr. Phelps was accorded a private audience. The queen expressed the warmest thanks for the president's congratulations. A private reception of diplomats on such occasions is almost unprecedented, but the American minister had expressed a desire, through Lord Salisbury, for such an audience, and the queen replied that it would afford her much pleasure to receive him privately for the presentation of the president's message.

The exercises attending the celebration of the queen's jubilee were continued today in all business centers of the country. Corporations, by thus forestalling the London order of exercises, will enable their officials to be present at the services in Westminster abbey. The programmes everywhere are similar in character, thanksgiving services, local reviews of volunteers, municipal banquets, children's fetes, illuminations, etc.

A private rehearsal was held in Westminster today in the presence of the archbishop of Cantantocratic state officials assisted in the ceremony of removing the coronation chair to a dais and placing it before the queen's stool. The grand robes of state were brought forward by the queen's robesmen and were handed to the lord chamberlain, by whom they were placed over the coronation chair. The choral service opened with a jubilee anthem, which is more fervid and more operatic in character than usual in the cathedral services. A grand Te Deum, composed by the prince consort, followed; then Bridge's anthem, composed especially for the jubilee ceremony, throughout which is interwoven the prince consort choral. The rehearsal was a perfect success, and the effect was grand.

At midnight crowds were still moving about the streets and thousands were pouring westward, apparently with the intention of remaining out all night, so as to secure positions along the route of the procession. The police permit to publicans to keep their places open practically all night tomorrow has aroused public in dignation, it being feared that such license will be conducive to riots and orgies.

cally all night tomorrow has aroused public indignation, it being feared that such license will be conducive to riots and orgies.

In the house of commons this evening, Sir Wilfred Lawson demanded to know under what law the permission was given. The home secretary contended that the commissioner of police had discretion to extend the hours of public houses. The question would be reopened, however, as he believed the government had exceeded its powers.

Minister Phelps delivered to the queen an autograph letter from President Cleveland, which was sealed. The queen received Mr. Phelps in a small room, not one of the state apartments, and only the duke of Connaught and Lord Salisbury were present. Her majesty expressed her sense of the kind feeling always manifested towards her by the American people. Other diplomats carrying congratulations were received afterwards in the customary form. The Boston address was taken to the queen's private apartments this evening. Her majesty was much touched at the sentiments contained in the address, and read the ode, which was printed on cream-colored satin, with proculiar interest. which was printed on cream-colored satin, with peculiar interest.

Henry Matthews and other Catholic officials will attend services in Westminster Abbe Lord North writes that Cardinal Manning h ordered the holding of an official mass, to which all Catholic peers are invited and which Monsignor Schaly will attend. The queen has approved the arrangement.

Cardinal Manning writes:

Any Catholic holding an office which requireshi attention on the queen may fulfill his duty. This exception to the obligation to Catholies to worship only in unity of the church, does not extend to others not holding such office. In the Catholic churches throughout London, a solemn mass of thanksgiving will be offered tomorrow with fervent prayer for the welfare and happiness of the queen. I am unaware that any tickets to the service in Westminister have been returned, but can attest that if any Catholics have done so they are loyal and loving subjects of the queen.

Vienna, June 20.—The Official Gazette of tomorrow will contain an article on the jubilee of Queen Victoria. It will say:

Millions of voices throughout the world-wide empire will extol the queenly and womanly virtues of Victoria. The day marks a long epoch in the political welfare of her realm. The whole world sympathizes with the fame of the queen whose blessed rule reaches every quarter of the globe. This sympathy is most cordially shared in by Austria's sovereign. The virtues of Victoria throughout the whole of her life recall those of our own great empress, Maria/Theresa. Both were endowed with rich gifts, mental and physical. Both ascended the throne in the prime of youth. Both enjoyed the richest and purest domestic happiness, which both fully deserved. The joy of each was clouded by the death of a beloved husband, for whom each never ceased to monrn. Both went through life around, and both were revered by their peoples. The memory of Victoria, like that of Maria Theresa, will be blessed as long history exists.

The press is requested to state that the number of congratulatory telegrams from public bodies and private individuals is so overwhelmingly large that it is impossible to answer them individually. The queen is greatly touched and gratified by such expressions of loyalty and devotion from all classes of her subjects. On the advice of Lord Salisbury, jubilee honors will be conferred on several liberal-unionists. The streets present an animated appearance, many vehicles going about full of people viewing the preparations.

The Diet of Hesse Passes the Ecclesiastical Bill—Speech of the Pope.
Berlin, June 20.—The second chamber of the diet of Hesse has passed the ecclesiastical bill, settling the conflict between Hesse and the vatican. The arrest of Deputy Kraeker on Saturday evening is attributed to his being a member of a secret society, the center of which is at Breslau. Brunse, who was arrested at Wurseburg, and Markuse, a student, arrested at Breslau, are members of the same society.
The Germania publishes the text of a speech made by the pope recently to German pilgrims going to Jerusalem. After an appeal to them to have confidence in the wisdom and tact of the vatican, comes the following significant passage:

The present modus vivende for Prussian Catholics does not include all demands of the papal see. The church in Prussia will yet obtain all its liberty. The vatican continues to negotiate in this direction at Leipsic.

PARIS, June 20.—Paris newspapers expresindignation over the sentences decreed at Leipsic against the Alsatian members of the patriotic league, just convicted of high treason for assisting in the agitation to keep alive the anti-annexation feeling in Alsace-Lorraine. The league itself protests strongly against the sentences and has issued a circular on the subject. This twits the Germans with being as actively engaged in the work of espionage as they accuse the French of being. MM. Deroulede, Sansbouf and other members of the league have signed an appeal to President Grevy begging him to intervene for the release of Koechlin, sentenced to imprisonment in a fortress, but it is not thought probable that M. Grevy will accede.

Sallie Pulliam, colored, was arraigned before Justice Goss's court, in Hartwell, last Tuesday, charged with the murder of her five year old sister, by burning, but some irregularities in the proceedings caused the discharge of the prisoner. From the story of the crime, as given by those in position to know the facts in the case, it was one of very aggravated nature. The wife of Mr. T. H. Bird, of Meriwether county, is reported to have eloped with her brother-in-law, James Patterson, last week. Mrs Patterson and Mrs. Bird were sisters. The elopement is a most unaccountable one, as Tom Bird is one of the most industrious and thrifty farmers in his peighbyrhood. ons and thrifty farmers in his neighborhood.

A few days ago, as the train was going over the long trestle on the A. P. & L. near the limits of Americus, two dogs were observed on the bridge just ahead. The whistle was sounded and the speed of the train slackened, but so near had it approached the dogs that they became frightened and leaped off of the track to the ground below, a distance of twenty-five or thirty feet, and with the expension of the track to the ground below, a distance of twenty-five or thirty feet, and with the expension on the edge of Houston county. When Mr. Affleck started home in the evening the dog could not be found. About three days afterward he was heard whining, which led to his discovery. He had fallen into a well forty feet deep, and upon lowering a cotton basket he crawled in and was safely landed upon terra firma, looking somewhat the worse from his confinement.

An Americus gentleman says: Thursday evening I saw a curiosity in the shape of a sand cloud. It appeared to be about five hundred feet high and looked like an inverted funnel. The base seemed to be forty or fifty yards wide, and its apex extended to a point some five hundred feet high. It was whirling with frightful rapidity, and went straight un with frightful rapidity, and went straight up out of sight. It roared like a train of cars, which I thought it was until I saw the cloud. It was about two and a half miles northwest of Americus.

Last week Messrs. J. J. Grantham and Session Faircloth, of Bainbridge, went fishing for rock bass. They put out their hooks at night in Spring creek. Next morning they went to fish them. Only one hook had prey, and was stubbornly held to bottom. After a good pull it gradually yielded and approached the top. When it came to view the hook had a sixty-pound lifeless fish, and a lively fifty-pound loggerhead turtle holding fast to the immense bass, upon which he had been feasting. He was drawn to the boat's side before he made up his mind to let go.

up his mind to let go.

A dastardly attempt was made by some one a few nights ago to burn the residence of Mr. L. H. Reeves, in Americus. An armful of fat lightwood, which had been lying on the porch for some time, was carried into the hall by the would-be incendiary and piled against the wall, after which other combustible material, such as old brooms, clothes, paper, etc., were added to the pile and the match applied. Fortunately the fire was discovered by a servant before it had burned very long, and was quickly extinguished; not, however, before a considerable hole had been burned through the floor, through which the burning brands had fallen to the ground beneath.

A remarkable surgical operation was performed in Oglethorpe county the other day. Joshua Sims, a negro man, has for some time been complaining that he felt something crawling in his leg, just above the knee. He declared it was a crawfish, and said he could feel him biting him all the time. Physicians made an examination, and laughed at Joshua, telling him there was nothing wrong with him. He would not be satisfied, however, and he consulted a negro hoodooh doctor. This doctor performed some kind of an operation, and sure enough brought forth a live crawfish from Joshua's leg. That is, the negroes claim he did, and say that Joshua has the crawfish to show for itself. He has, at all events, made no complaints sinee.

A shooting and cutting affray, between some negroes, occurred in Pond town district one day last week, in which Tom Ball, Jack Harrell and Gus Bishop were the main actors. It appears that Ball and Harrell were engaged in a difficulty, when Gus Bishop interferred in Ball's behalf, which so incensed Harrell as to cause him to unload his popper, the ball therefrom striking Bishop in the head, inflicting a painful and perhaps fatal wound. Harrell, with another negro, again attacked Ball, when Ball used his pocket knife to such effect as to make his antagonist get further. The trouble originated in an attempt to arrest Ball, who was under bail on a charge of assault with intent to murder, the attacking parties being his bondsmen and trying to effect his arrest to deliver him over to the sheriff.

He was quite active up to the time of his death, and it is said, told his son after eating a hearty supper, "Dat is my last meal. I'se guine ter die ter night." "Pshaw!" said his son, "youre in good health, and will live years yet." "Yes," said the old man, "I'se got good health, but old Harry!! answer de roll call in heaben in de maunin'. THE ASSAILANT NOW UNDER ARREST.

Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—Macon young men will be careful how they look at pretty women for some time to come. Montmery Thrower, a big, fine looking fellow, od up before Recorder Baxter today and pleaded guilty to the charge of striking N. M. Block in the face with his umbrella on the street yesterday evening. When called upon for a statement Thrower said: "I was walking with my wife in the park yesterday, when we went to the refreshment stand to get some lefreshments. This young man was present, with several companions, and stared hard at my wife, who was annoyed, but simply hung her head, and we passed on. As we came around the corner he planted himself and took square gaze at her. She spoke to me of his sonduct and remarked that he had been in the habit of doing the same way while passing our residence, corner of Second and Plum streets. I still did nothing, Second and Plum streets. I still did nothing, but last evening as we were passing along Plum street, he met us, and again stared at her, when I said, 'How dare you stare at this lady, and struck him with my umbrella."

Mr. Block was then allowed to make a statement. He said: "I never saw the man before to know him, and certainly never saw the lady, ment. He said: "I never saw the man before to know him, and certainly never saw the lady, that I am aware of, before in my life. The place where he says they live is across the street from where I live, and I never go on that side at all. Yesterday evening I had just left Mr. Smith and was on my way home. I had on a double vest chain, and was fixing it, walking along with my head bent down, when suddenly I looked as and at the same time received a severe my head bent down, when studenty I looked up and at the same time received a severe blow across the face, which staggered me, and I cried out: 'My God, man, what are you striking me for?' Then he muttered, 'I'll get my pistol to him,' and ran across the street. I went on home, still ignorant of the cause of offense.

Seisel and Smith, two young men who were with him at the park, both said that they saw nothing in Block's manner at all impertment.

Sam Weichselbaum testified that he was sitting on his veranda when the affair occurred, and he thought it was a most unprovoked assault. When he heard Thrower has would got his wisted. Weichsel. sel and Smith, two young men who were say he would get his pistol, Weichselbaum advised Block to go on, as he feared Thrower might shoot him. In summing up the case Recorder Baxter said that he thought that the attack was uncalled for. He thought Thrower had failed to establish the fact that Thrower had failed to establish the fact that Block had insulted his wife, and that even if he had stared at her that was no reason why he should thus maltreat him without a moment's warning. As Mr. Block had done swemout a warrant he could not give him the full benefit of the law. The case was likely to come before a jury some time, and would then be thoroughly investigated. He then imposed after of twenty-five dollars, which, Thrower. a fine of twenty-five dollars, which Thrower aid. He was then arrested and put under bond to appear before Justice Freeman tomor-row afternoon for his commitment trial.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

Is the Verdict of the Cononer's Jury in the Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—This morning Ceroner Hodnett empanelled a jury to mauric into the manner in which Peter Twine came to his death. E. T. Birdsong swore that is he was driving Belt Line car No. 21, on Washington avenue, late yesterday evening, lesswa how come running along on a leadhe saw a boy come running along on a ban close to the track. He halloed to him to g to the track. He halloed to him to get of the way, but the car was going down, e, and the next instant the boy slipped fell and the end of the brake beam struck knocking him down, and the front wheel dover his leg.

I doon stopped the car as quiet and jumping off, gave him what assistance and. The boy sound badly hurt, and sent to the house of Annie Grant, where on died.

H. M. Oliver, a passenger, testified that h the boy, and heard the warning cry of the rer, and that the latter was not going unusly statat the time. He said that the driver sped the car at once, as soon as the accident urred, and used all precaution to prevent

He noticed bruises an the boy's leg, and blood on his head, as he was removed.

He thought that the driver was entirely blameless, and had the boy not attempted to cross the track the accident would not have occurred. Thomas Screen, colored, swore that he saw the boy running with the other boys in pursuit of him; heard the driver call out to him, and then heard the boy grunt as the wheel struck him. When he reached the seen he saw that the boy was badly hurt, and he asked him how it happened. The boy replied that he was being chased by some other toys, and running along the bank he slipped and lell, and the mule knocked him under the wheel. Screen said there was a crowd of and lell, and the mule knocked him under the wheel. Screen said there was a crowd of about twenty boys chasing him.

Louis Battle swore that the boy, Peter Twine, caught up with him as he was on his way to Mr. Kline's and that thoy did not go far before Twine met Aaron King and Squire Frederick, and that when they met they soon began quarreling, and finally got into a fight. Squire got a brick and Aaron drew a knife, and then Pete ran, pursued by the others, until he was thrown under the car and killed.

Annie Grant and Julia Ann Pie both swore that they were sitting in their doors when the accident occurred, and the driver was not to blame. They said it was no more than what they had been long expecting, as the boys were forever putting rocks, bricks, and other obstructions on the track, and cutting up all sorts of pranks.

The jury brought in a vergict as follows:

The jury brought in a vereict as follows:
We the jury, find that Peter Twine came to his death by being accidentally run over by street car 80.21, while running from two boys who were pursuing him with a knife and rocks, and that in our opinion no biame can be attached to the City and Saburban Street railway company.

Macon Trying to Scoop in the Outside Retreats.

Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—A committee of six from the council and twolve citizens was appointed by a resolution of council, to meet and consider the matter of the extension of the city limits. This committee met tonight. Present, Mayor Price, Aldermen Davis, Hudgins, Smith, Horne, Ingalls and O'Hara, and citizens B. L. Willingham, S. R. Jaques, John T. Voss, H. S. Edwards and T. J. Carling. Mayor Price arose and stated the object of the meeting, and called for a nomination. S. R. Jaques was elected chairman and H. S. Edwards secretary. Mr. Willingham stated that he thought the best plan was to appoint a committee to confer with the outsiders. He moved a sub-committee of five be appointed to confer with the outsiders. Adderman Davis seconded the motion.

Mr. Edwards thought it would take too long and favored the publication of an address to the outsiders, then to meet this committee hereafter, and hold a conference. He stated that Vineville is only awaiting the agreement of two or three vital points when, by a popular vote, Vineville may come in. It is proposed also, that Gilesville have a separate day to confer with the committee.

He moved that a committee of three be appointed to draft an address requesting a committee of citizens of Vineville and other suburbs to meet this committee here at different times, and to come prepared to discuss all the points in the case.

Mayor Price substituted that the time of meeting be left with the committee drafting the address.

The motion was carried. An informal discussion then ensued, after which the meeting adjourned.

Saturday evening, about dark, a negro woman named Cherry Davis, was found by her daughter dead in her bed, at the home of the deceased, near the Vineville branch. Cherry was about sixty years old, and had been sick for some time, and it was generally the rule of the family not to leave the woman entirely alone. But Saturday afternoon was a very busy time with the several daughters of the woman, who had gone in various directions to take to their patrons the week's washing. When one of the daughters returned to the house she spoke to her mother, and receiving no answer, she went to the bed and found her dead, dis-solution, no doubt, having occurred some hours previous, as the body was coldand rigid.

On Sundays, after a voluntary by the Oxford choir, led by Professor R. M. McIntosh, and a solemn and earnest invocation for the college. its prefessors and the graduating class, by Bishop Joseph S. Key, the scripture lessons were read by Rev. C. A. Evans, from the Old Testament, fourth chapter of Proverbs' from the

Dr. H. C. Morrison, formerly of the Louis

Dr. H. C. Morrison, formerly of the Louisville conference, Now pastor of First Methodist church in Atlanta, announced as the subject of his sermon, "The Knowledge of Christ, the Highest Knowledge," and read as his text, the eighth verse of third chapter of Phillippians. For an hour and fifteen minutes he held the large congregation in rapt attention, in one of the ablest, clearest and purest gospel sermons that has ever been delivered here on a commencement occasion.

He started out by saying that, "All knowledge is based on the unknown." He said:
Whether our investigations lead us upward among the stars, or downward among the geologic facts and rocks, we first get our ideas from God, in the former the idea of space, and in the latter that of duration; that instead of faith being based on reason, reason was based on faith; that man is placed here, as it were, en an island, and that in every direction are the limitations set, the ocean; that while God is seen in nature, he who tries through nature

the limitations set, the ocean; that while God is seen in nature, he who tries through nature alone to know God can find only his shadow. Therefore, much of the so-called advanced thought of the modern pulpit is only a retrogression from God.

He said again that the visible points to God and the future. That Christ came to this world and set the current toward Him and the future. We look forward all the time. The child, nants for the child, nants for the child. I have a superfect of the child with the child. The child has always been hunting God; tried to find Him in woods, streams, the ocean and sun and stars. While God has always been hovering about man he been hunting God; tried to find Him in woods, streams, the ocean and sun and stars. While God has always been hovering about man he had never been able to find Him. But Christ came in the likeness of man, with his flesh and his nature, and thus revealed God to man. And the picture of Christ is so much like man that many have contended that He was only man. When we read of God in nature His eye is fixed on the material, while in the Old Testament we see it fixed on the Jews; but when we read of God. Testament we see it fixed on the Jews; but when we read of God in Christ, we see His eye fixed on us; nor is it ever taken off of us until we leave this world for the other world.

Not only does Christ meet the desires of humanity, but transforms. Knowledge from manity, but transforms. Knowledge from nature cannot do this. We may traverse the fields of science and philosophy, learn all that is knowable, still this knowledge does not fields of science and philosophy, learn all that is knowable, still this knowledge does not change us. But the knowledge that comes to us through Christ transforms us into new beings. When we reach this knowledge we are no longer the same beings. The most important day in anyone's life is the day he receives this knowledge. Other days are fraught with importance. There are days of destiny in our life, but none on which so much depends as on this. It decides the eternal destiny.

It is character that transforms character. There are well dressed, well educated persons with whom we meet in social life who are the emissaries of hell and graduates of the first honor from the schools of Satan. These, coming in contact with the young, transform their character and start them on the road to ruin. So it is the good characters that transform those about them and lead them to a higher life. Then what a transforming power there is in the physical of the start them is the physical of the start that the physical of the start them that the physical of the start that the physical of the start them the start that the physical of the start them the start that the physical of the start that the physical of the start them the start the start them the start that the physical of the start them the start them the start that the start them the start them the start the start them the start that the start that the start them the character and start them on the road to ruin. So it is the good characters that transform those about them and lead them to a higher life. Then what a transforming power there is in the character of Christ.

It not only transforms humanity but also gives it power. The great general imparts to his soldiers all the courage and endurance of himself. With the knowledge and character of Christ, we are given His power and can fight and conquer and endure as did He. And it perfects man. All knowledge and all effort outside of Christ leaves us still imperfect. But through Christ we may become perfect.

In conclusion the doctor made a strong appeal to the graduating class, asking them to take their diplomas to Christ and have his signature attached.

At the conclusion the choir sang with much spirit, "Take the name of Jesus with you," after which the Rev. J. B. McGehee, of the South Georgia conference offered up the closing prayer, praying earnestly for the boys entering life to take the name of Jesus with them wherever they went. Services closed with the doxology and benediction by Dr. Morrison.

Morrison.

At 4 p. m. a service of sacred song was held at the church. The singing was conducted by Professor R. M. McIntosh, and the solos sang by him were rendered with great force. All felt that the service of song was one of the most enjoyable parts of commencement.

At night an able sermon was preached by Dr. J. W. Hinton, of Macon, Ga., from a text selected from the 13th chapter of the gospel by John.

MONDAY'S EXERCISES. At 10:30 a. m., Monday, June 20th, the Sophomore exhibition was opened by prayer by Rev. H. H. Parks, of Atlanta, Ga. Then followed declamations by the twelve speakers:

P. J. Williams, Columbus, Ga., The New South and the New North—Anonymous.
At the close of the declamations, the committee chosen to award first and second "Stewart prizes" met in the ante room, and the audience was dismissed with benediction by Dr. W. H. Potter.

The declamation of the day was good. All the boys show careful training and much practice. So many of them were so nearly equal that it is difficult to say to whom the prizes will be awarded. But in the opinion of your correspondent those deserving special mention are J. E. Mickler, H. G. Parks, J. W. Gillespie, C. H. Tigner, P. J. Williams.

The sophomores were trained by Dr. M. Callaway, and their success is due in a large measure to his good taste and untiring labor.

Music for the occasion was furnished by Wurm's band, of Atlanta.

The prizes will be delivered tomorrow afternoon.

Visitors are still arriving, and all the indica-tions are that this will be the grandest com-mencement in the history of the college. The "sweet girl graduates" are here, and hence all goes "as merry as a marriage bell."

From the number of visitors and the interest manifested, this commencement promises to be one of unusual interest.

The services Sundry were made much more impressive by the excellent music of the Oxford choir, under the direction of Professor McIntosh.

After Miss Adler had recited, General Hill advanced to the front of the stage and an-nounced that Governor Gordon would address the audience. As the governor arose, an in-describable scene was witnessed. The splen-did form of the grand old here, with his scarred did form of the grand old hero, with his scarred face, brought tears to the eyes of many, while the great building trembled under the deafening applause of the admiring crowd. His speech was impromptu, but the governor never made a speech that more thoroughly enthused his hearers than it did. It was a patriotic address, moulding the hearts of the young in eloquent words and a feeling manner, to lives of usefulness and goodness. His tribute to General Hill and the old soldiers was touchingly eloquent, stirring the soul and bringing tears to the eyes. He was frequently interrupted by applause, and it could be seen at a glance that he had taken the town by storm.

at a game that he had taken to be storm.

Early this morning, the governor and Mrs. Gordon were driven to the asylum, where they breakfasted and spent a couple of hours. On their return to the city a large number of the citizene called on him at the Oconee house. An impromptu reception was given him last night on his arrival here. He left this evening for home. His stay here was short, but he leaves with the hearts of the people in his possession. Every one regretted that business called him away so soon.

The address by Hon. Chas. Z. McCord, of Angusta, before the literary societies tonight, followed by a reunion and banquet to all the ex-members of the societies, will close a grand day in the history of the Middle Georgia Mechanical and Agricultural college.

HE CONFESSED HIS CRIME,

FORSYTH, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—This morning Deputy Sheriff James H. King noticed a strange negro boy with a fine mare and buggy drive up to the public well to water the horse. Engaging in conversation with him, the negro proposed to sell him the turnout for one hundred and seventy-five dollars, but soon fell to one hundred. Mr. King arrested him on suspicion and placed him in jail. After staying in jail an hour or two, he sent for Mr. King, and said that he hired the horse and buggy for two days from Mr. James Glass, living seven miles from Newnan. He has had the same for three weeks. He gave his name as Bose or George Gibson. The horse and buggy are in possession of the deputy sheriff. Secret.

Judge Gleen has taken the Madison house, and is having it thoroughly renovated; fixing things up in first class style. It will be known as the Gleen house. The success of this house has been phenomenal. Beginning in a little shanty by the depot only a year or two ago they soon outgrew the house, and moved up on the square. Now they have out grown a 14 room building, and still they grow in popularity.

An Early Stalk of Cotton.

From the Americus, Ga., Recorder.

We were shown yesterday a stalk of very fine cotton from the plantation of Captain J. B. Scott, who lives out in the 28th district. It was eighteen inches high and was said to be a fair sample of a two hundred acre field. Captain Scott is one of our most successful planters and has an abundance of the good things of life, but fortune, it seems, never does things by halves, as besides his fine cotton he was made the proud possesser of a bouncing boy a day or two since. Some passages of the charge were striking in phraseology and sentiment. He urged upon the grand jury the sanctity of the cath they had taken, stating "that the government is best which is a government of law, and which impartially enforces its laws." He then went best which is a government of law, and which impartially enforces its laws." He then went on to say:

There is no man in the community, no matter how high his condition or how pure his life, who can escape the deadly effects which follow natur; ally and necessarily from where the criminal, by the inefficiency of courts or by a careless spirit among the people, is permitted to go unwhipped of justice. You may wrap yourself in the mantle of your own virtue; you may, like the Pharisee in the parable, thank God that you are not as other men are, or you may be one of the elect, of the very salt of the earth. You may be a kind neighbor, a friend to the widow; you may labor to develop your country's material treasures in peace, and you may have done your whole duty as a soldier under the flag your conscience followed into the fiery crest of battle. But though you are all of these, though every man say of you, "he is a good citizen and a true man," unless you are resolute to put forth the whole energy of your nature to aid by legal methods in bringing to justice and deserved punishment those who criminally violate the laws, you are not a good citizen.

Suppose you have indulged the illicit rum seller or rum maker in carrying on his evil business. You have seen him purvey to the brutal and ignorant the coarse and fiery spirits, alcohol which at once debauch the nature, frenzy the mind and fire the passions. You have not interfered. The judiciary systems of the states and of the national courts need never conflict. They are and should be harmonious parts, so symmetrical, so complete, and so beneficive, that they empower the people of the states to administer their local laws as they think best and the courts of the union to wield their delever, and promises for all time the preservation of over, and promises for all time the preservation of our liberties under the law.

A Huge Skeleton.

From the Rockmart, Ga., Slate. Three miles east of Rockmart, at the new ime quarry of Crow & Robinson, there was exumed last week by the workmen a huge specimen of the homo-genius of a prehistoric age.

It is a monster skeleton of a man, measusing two and a half feet across the chest, seven and a half feet in length, feet eighteen inches long, and arms, legs, etc., proportionately long and large. Teeth found near the skeleton, and supposed to belong to it, measure one and a half inches in length. This skeleton was found in a medium sized cave, the mouth of which was covered with earth eight or ten feet deep, occasioned, it is presumed, by a landslide. It lay in a large sarcophagus, hewn out by an architect, in the side of the cave, encompassed by great bowlders of rock.

Many persons have gone to the quarry to see it and examine for themselves.

THE CONSTITUTION.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 21, 1887.

Dress Shall Neither Make or Unmake. Our excellent contemporary, the Kansas City Times, admirers THE CONSTITUTION'S pretty dress, but fears that our head may be turned by it. As witness:

turned by it. As witness:

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, the brightest paper in the south, has changed its dress. Take care that it does not change its character. When the Philadelphia Times disposed of its old dress it also disposed of its brightest features. There is much danger in these changes, for, like other summer costumes, they are apt to be "thin," Let The CONSTITUTION live up to its reputation.

We accepte the Times we shall not drift

We assure the Times we shall not drift into dudish habits of thought or manner, shough for the matter of that, there is often more pluck and energy beneath the smart coat of a dude than beneath the rags of a vagabond. Murat changed none the less ffectively because of the gew-gaws that covered his breast.

The Times is unlucky in its example and the application of it. The Philadelphia Times has not lost its crispness and force to the extent implied. If the edge of its humor and energy have been somewhat dulled, it is due more to the reduction of its price to one cent, than to anything else. The curse of this age is the cry for cheapness-the demand of the public for a dollars' worth of stuff for fifty cents in money. It is this demand that has led to the adulteration of every article of food and almost every article of common ware. The newspapers should have stood out against the degrading and dangerous tendency-for it is both dangerous and degrading. Many of them have yielded to it and have lost point and character by doing so. It is as much impossible for a paper to sell four cents' worth of news for one cent as it is to sell a dollars' worth of sugar for twenty-five cents. The quantity may be measured out and delivered, but there will be deterioration if not adulteration in the quality. Five days out of the seven the New York Sun has the news of the day packed in its small compass, better written, plainer to read and easier to understand and digest, than it is to be found in the enormous blanket sheets over which it is spread and sold for the same price. The public will finally be taught to buy its news as it buys its perfumes, in which a tiny bottle of Lubin's is found to hold the essence of a broad-spreading meadow. We have no direct interest in this matter. The sovereign contempt of our constituency for any change less than a nickel, fixes the price of all southern newspapers. The morning papers and the evening papers half as large, are alike sold to newsboys at 24 cents, and to the public at 5 cents. If the system should be changed THE CONSTI-TUTION will assuredly hold to such a price as will enable it to incur not only the ordinary but the extraordinary expenses demanded by its duty to its readers. The very cheapest thing on this earth a man can buy is a good newspaper, no matter what he pays for it. And the restless spirit that forces journalism into the fashion of this adulterating day-this day of offering a great big quantity for a little bit of money-sins against the best quality and character of the profession. It is not the dress that makes or mars a newspaper. It is the head that is behind it-the purpose that is in it-the energy that drives it—the honest quantity and quality of its news-the excellence of With this assured, even our western contemporary will agree with us that a clear face and a neat dress are not essentially bad or dangerous incidentals

IT MUST be poison to Editor Halstead to feel in his bones that the south, being a part of the nation, would prefer to see the captured flags remain where they are-in-the nation's capital.

Generous But Not Just.

The statement that the women of Ireland will make a jubilee offering of $15,000,000 to Queen Victoria may be misleading.

It is true that a good share of the money comes from Irish women. It was wrung from them by the landlord class. Poverty, famine and evictions have never made the landlords of Ireland merciful. They have demanded all that was nominated in the bond. When they could get nothing else they have clamored for their pound of flesh.

The ladies of these landlords doubtless think that they are doing a graceful thing when they tumble their millions into the queen's lap, but their gift is nothing more nor less than the blood and tears of an oppressed people.

Queen Victoria is doubtless the richest sovereign in Europe. Her private fortune is enormous, and she has never spent much in charity. The least appropriate of all gifts to her on the occasion of her jubilee is a gift of money, and especially money that has been extorted from the suffering people of Ireland.

THE PHILADELPHIA PRESS says that the democrats of Virgnia are going to hold a convention because they are badly frightened. Bosh! They are going to hold a convention in order to convince the whisky ring that it cannot control the democrati party of the south.

Killing a Wife Beater.

Our Savannah dispatch yesterday gave the details of a tragedy in that city, the shooting of a man by his step-son.

It appears that the man who was killed was a professional wife-beater. He was in the habit of abusing his wife shamefully. He not only got drnnk whenever opportunity offered, but made his condition the excuse for pounding and abusing his wife. According to the testimony, her life was in continual danger, and her husband was such a ferocious brute that her two children by another husband were compelled to live away from her.

THE CONSTITUTION takes this occasion to observe that wife-beaters are dealt with altogether too leniently by those who have charge of the administration of the law. For a man to beat his wife is not only a violation of the law as it stands, but it is an outrage on the unwritten law. It is in fact a violence offered to society itself, and should be dealt with as severely as the crime itself would suggest. In Atlanta, however, it only costs an able bodied white man $10.75 to beat and abuse his wife, and whenever he has that sum about his person he is fully justified in shing his spouse's face out of shape or in breaking her bones. Such leniency as this is justified by neither common sense nor public sentiment. A man who beats his wife should be sent to the chain-gang or to the whipping-post. This is the solution of the whole matter. The Savannah lad who, under the impulse of the moment, shot to death the drunken brute who had been maltreating his mother, probably thought that he was doing the ight thing, and there are a great many lawabiding people who will agree with him. He did what he thought was best under the circumstances, and gave himself up to the Homicide is a very terrible thing under any circumstances, but it seems to us that it is less terrible when a son undertakes it for the protection of his mother against the ferocity of a drunken brute. Our telegram, as we have said, stated that the boy gave himself up to the authorilies. The coroner assembled a jury and investigated the killing. It is remarkable that the only sober suggestion of the jury was made by drunken negro, who said he thought it was justifiable homicide. The drunken negro got at the pith of the matter with a brevity that may be described as truly Caucasian.

THERE IS one feature about the flag episode that is well enough in its way. We mean the opportunity that has been given to Editor Halstead to advance to the footlights under the influence of beer and fire off a horse-pistol.

Natually He is in Demand. The Washington Post speaks in glowing erms of the Rev. Dr. Lorimer, of Chicago, who has recently received a call to the Thirteenth-street Baptist church, of Wash-

Among the strong points in Dr. Lorimer's career mentioned by the Post are the following: He came to America from Scotland as a stowaway, hiding himself until the vessel was out of the sight of land. From New York he tramped to Louisville where he became an actor. Then he developed everything that was bad. He gambled, stole and went down into the slums.

These piquant bits of biography prepare u for the statement that the doctor is eloquent and "full of energy and dramatic power." Since he entered the ministry he has always enjoyed high salaries and large congregations. He tells stories attractively, loves flowers, is an enthusiastic fisherman and makes jovial companion. We do not wonder at the desire of the Washingtonians to secure the services of such a man. Everywhere there is a disposition to make the gray-haired ministers who have served God and behaved themselves all their lives take back seats. Up from the slums rush the reformed stowaways, tramps, gamblers, thieves and drunkards to push them from their places.

We are simply presenting the case as Dr. Lorimer's friends and admirers present it. If it strikes the thoughtful few that there s something wrong somewhere, we cannot help it. Many of our readers will recollect Carlyle's description of us: "Forty million people, most of 'em fools." We have added o our population since then

The South and the Interstate Law ion of the interstate commission. We have not seen a complete report of that decision which was too voluminous to be sent over From the synopsis and extracts that came over the wires we gather that the decision of the commission leaves the railroad situation of the south pretty much as it is. In other words, the commission appears to realize the fact that railway rates in almost every southern state are controlled the water rates.

General Alexander, president of the Central railroad. is of the opinion that this realization is not as extensive, so to speak, as the real facts warrant. This is doubtless true, but the country is to be congratulated that the southern transportation system is not to be revolutionized.

The point which General Alexander makes, and which THE CONSTITUTION has insisted on in its discussion of the interstate law, is that not only are the lines which touch the water-ways compelled to meet water rates, but that the competition really extends to interior lines.

This is so true that it is well known to those who have studied the subject that the entire southern transportation system has adjusted itself to a situation which compels t to compete with water-carriage on the gulf, the ocean and the rivers.

That the commission has even partially recognized this fact is something to be thankful for.

It is said that Henry George is getting rich very fast. This shows why Mr. George belongs to an anti-poverty society.

The Queen's Jubilee. Fifty years ago yesterday, Queen Victoria

scended the throne of England. Today the event is to be especially com memorated throughout Great Britain and all its provinces. An effort was made to get up some sort of general recognition of the occasion in the United States, but it met with little sympathy, even among the English born citizens of this country. They are so much better off here than are their friends and relatives in England, that they do not see any cause to rejoice at the queen's jubilee. It is true there is to be a little meeting in New York and a banquet in Boston, but they will be small affairs and will represent an insignificant element in the United States.

A ghastly recognition of the queen's semi-centennial will be given at the meeting of Irishmen which will be held in New York tonight. It will be a memorial meeting in honor of the Irishmen who have given their lives to the cause of their country's liberty during the past fifty years.

It is probable that Queen Victoria has actually exercised the royal prerogatives longer than any other ruler of England, though there are three reigns which nominally extend over a longer period.

Henry the Third, was king over fifty-six years, but as he was only nine years old at his accession and was of weak character, it is very certain that England was governed by his guardians for many years.

Edward the Third, nominally reigned fifty and a half years, but he was only fourteen when he went on the throne and could for several years.

George the Third, the grandfather of Queen Victoria, held the throne fifty-nine years, but fully ten years before his death his stupid old mind grew so heavy that the prince regent had to assume all the duties of king.

When Victoria was crowned she was h her nineteenth year and was a young woman of more than ordinary sense and character. During all of the fifty years of her reign she has held the royal power in her own hands, though she has, of course, had about her counsellors, in whose experience and wisdom she had confidence. During her reign the power of England has increased and her territory has been greatly enlarged. But the power of the sovereign has been diminished under the steady and irresistible encroachments of the spirit of democracy. Royalty was, in a great degree, only a name when Victoria ascended the throne. She must realize that it is now an emptier title than it was then, and that the tendency of her people is toward popular government. It may be that the sovereign who will today jubilate over the completion of her fiftieth year on the throne, will be the last queen England shall ever have.

WE ARE still waiting to see some really prominent republican cut a few capers over the confederate flag episode.

Cloud-Bursts.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: What is a cloud.

The term "cloud-burst" is a misnomer. Properly speaking, clouds never burst; they simply dissolve by condensation in rain. To produce the conden-sation of vapor which we call rain this vapor must be suddenly cooled. This happens when the ten perature of the lower strata of the atmosphere greatly increased, and the rising currents of warm air force the vapor up into the cold regions. This is why very hot weather in temperate latitudes is always followed by rain. Also, when the clouds, carried on the surface of a warm breeze, meet with a cold wind from the polar regions, or when a strong current of air carries the clouds against the colder surface of a high mountain, and the contact colder surface of a high mountain, and the contact with this surface condenses the vapor. Common phraseology in mountain regions describes these clouds as striking the mountain sides and bursting by the contact, as though they were bladders filled with water, whose sides suddenly give way. The more correct understanding of the phenomena shows that the rain is simply the condensation of the vapor molecules, the process being the same whether it be carried on slowly or rapidly. The effect of suddenness is much increased in mountain effect of suddenness is much increased in mountain regions by the overflow of springs and the increased velocity of streams as they flow through the rocky gorges of the hills.

Natural Gas. EDITORS CONSTITUTION: When was natura gas first discovered and used as a fuel?

SUBSCRIBER. The earliest use of natural gas on record is in China, where for centuries it has been conveyed through hollow bamboos from fissures in salt miner to the surface for burning purposes. Near the Caspian sea, in Asia, there are also places where natural gas is seen to exude from the earth, and similar phenomenon is to be seen in the Szalatus salt mine in Hungary. Natural gas was first dis covered in this country in the neighborhood of Fre ng citizens in the year 1821. A small well was ored in the village to the depth of twenty-sever feet, and the gas was conducted thre rect, and the gas was conducted through pipes to the houses, where it was used for illuminating pur-poses alone. It is said that in 1824, on the occasion of Lafayette's visit, the village was illumi-nated with natural gas, This well, which was drilled in 1850 to the depth of only seventy feet, continued to supply the village with illuminating gas until the year 1858. It is a noteworthy fact that although this interesting discovery we widely although this interesting discovery was widely known it did not lead to any further experiments either in the neighborhood or in other places, till fully twenty years after 1821. In the early part of the present century it was found that the which were bored for salt in the Kanawh yielded large quantities of gas. In 1841 this gas was first used as fuel for bolling the brines obtained from the wells. Nearly all the wells drilled for the pu first used as fuel for boffing the brines obtained from the wells. Nearly all the wells drilled for the purpose of obtaining petroleum afforded natural gas in abundance; it was, in fact, a considerable inconvenience to those engaged in sinking the wells, and often a source of serious danger. In 1865 a well which was sunk for petroleum at West Bloomfield, N. Y., struck a flow of natural gas. An effort was made to utilize this, and it was carried in a wooden main to the city of Rochester, a distance of twenty-four miles, in 1870 for the purpose of illuminating the city. but the experiment was a failure. So, though it was obvious that this gaseous product constituted an inexhaustile supply of excellent fuel, no attempt was made to put it to use in manufacture until during the past decade. In 1873 a well in Armstrong county, Pennsylvania, was so arranged that the gas could be separated from the water with which it was discharged, and conveyed through pipes to several mills in that vicinity, where it was used in the manufacture of bar iron. From that time to the present day the use of natural gas has increased very rapidly. It is estimated that the gas used in 1885 for heating and illuminating purposes, was equivalent to 3,131,000 tons of coal, having a value of $4,857,000. The consumption of gas during the last calendar vear, very much exceeded this quantity. The total value, estimated on the basis of the coal which it has displaced, probably amounted to more than $6,000,000.

Successful Treatment of Hydrophobia EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Your account of the biting of a young mean by a rabid dog in our city, a few days ago, recalls to my mind a case o considerable interest which I will state for the benefit of the party referred to or any others who may meet with the same misfortune. While traveling in Mississippi last December, I met with Dr. J. W. Foster, a practicing physician and druggist of Zeiglerville, Yazoo county, Miss., who was returning with his wife and three children from New York where the three children had been treated for hy where the three children had been treated for hydrophobia.

The statement made to me by Dr. F. was as follows: The three children were all bitten at one time by a Gordon setter (a dog that was much prized), and as soon as it was known that the animal was rabid, the doctor, knowing that hydrophobia might develop itself in thirty days, made prompt arrangements to take the children to Paris for treatment by the celebrated French chemist (Pasteur). Before leaving, a friend at Vicksburg gave him a letter of introduction to a physician in New York, who, on his arrival, informed him there would be no necessity for his going to Paris, as Dr. Valentine B. Mott, a prominent physician of New York, had just returned from Paris, where he had been for months studying the discase and practicing successfully under Pasteur, and that he was undoubtedly prepared to treat any case that presented itself. This was confirmed when he called on Dr. Mott, who told him he was nearly ready with a fresh supply of virus, and that his children were the first cases presented. The treatment commenced lin a day or two from that time, and, if I remember rightly, was confinued for about two weeks, at the end of which Dr. Mott assured him that the treatment was complete and evidently successful. Dr. Foster said each child was inocculated twice every day by hyodermic injection (under the skin), and that they had suffered no inconvenience or unpleasant effects from the treatment. Their appearance indicated perfect health. I have not seen or heard from Dr. Foster since my interview with him, which (as appears from my memorandum book) was on the Poster since my interview with him, which (as appears from my memorandum book) was on the 6th of last December; consequently the success of the treatment is not known to me, but as he promised to answer all inquiries upon the subject, a letter to him from any interested party would bring out the facts.

ter to him from any interested party would bring out the facts.

The address of Dr. Valentine B. Mott, as given me by Dr. F., was Carnegies' laboratory, 340 East Twenty-sixth, street, New York.

Dr. Foster said it was stated to him, as a fact, that out of more than 1,000 cases of hydrophobia treated by Pastuer up to that date, only nine were lost and these were persons who had the disease developed in their systems before the treatment commenced.

If this statement is only half true, the information given above may be of much importance to some unfortunate person. Respectfully yours, importance to some ally yours, ALPRED PRESCOTT.

MOCK MODESTY.

Thy Some Young Ladles Fled from Drowning Man in Lake Ponchartrain. Why Some From the New Orleans Letter. A pitiful case of this mock modesty occur A pitthic case of this mock modesy occur-red right here at home last week. One afternoon a party of young ladies and gentlemen went out sail-ing on the lake. A squall came up, and as they were hastening in to shore they were halled by some gentlemen whose boat had capsized and who,

in danger of drowning, were clinging for life to its slippery sides. It seems that these young men had been out for a deep sea bath and were consequently nude. Owing to the storm they had been in the water for a long while and one of the number was seized with cramps and his alarmed companishought he would die before help came. Now 10-year-old child who has ever tucked up its particular of the companish o lets and gone wading in a creek knows that a person being in the water and seized with cramps will probably die if not rescued. As the yacht came up to the distressed bathers they explained the situation to those on her and begged that the sick man might be taken aboard and a boat sent from West End to their own relief. But the mock-modest was left as district significant blushed, and I dare say young ladies giggled and blushed, and I dare say young ladies giggled and blushed, and I dare say peeped between the sticks of their fans, while yowing and declaring that they couldn't think of such a thing. They giggled again but did not think to look the other way and expressed themselves as horrified at the bare idea of rescuing a nude man from death. They had no thought for the suffering of the groaning young fellow down in the water being upheld by his anxious, dismayed and exhausted companions. They were too busy giggling and commenting on the awfully embarrassing fact that the geneleman who desired to come on board hadn't his wardrobe with him. No, they would rather he died than be saved by them in his would rather he died than be saved by them in his nude condition, and finally the yacht, freighted with enough sham sentiment and mock modesty to sink it to the very botrom in a mile deep of ocean water, sailed off, compromising between the pro-prieties and a common humanity by promising to send help from West Eud.

It was not the fault of those young women whoever they were, whatever they are, that the man they abandoned did not die before help came, but it is their fault if some honest men and modest women had a lesson in sham purity and pretend cence and a disgusted affectation of superior refine ment and virtue that they will not soon forget.

CLIMBING THE HEIGHTS

The Mercury Higher Than in Eleven Years.

THE HEAT OF SUNDAY AND MONDAY.

How it Affected the People-The Figures and Facts Obtained from the Records-A Big Day Among the Soda Fountains.

One hundred and two degrees in the shade! That was the figure a conservative, well-be-haved, reliable thermometer indicated last Sunday, when the courthouse clock chimed the second hour after noon. Was it hot?

Yes, it was very warm, and in addition, It was the hottest day Atlanta has had in nine years!

Sunday morning the sun rose clear and bright, and at 6 o'clock the mercury stood at 76 degrees. As the sun got higher and higher, the mercury became ambitious, and seemed to want to rival the sun in the altitude it could attain. The heat was unusually opprressive, owing to the transparency and dryness of the atmosphere. Rain had not fallen in over two weeks, and the amount of moisture was 15 per atmosphere. Rain had not fallen in over two weeks, and the amount of moisture was 15 per cent less than any day during the year, the relative humidity being 28 per cent. The great heat was not confined to Atfanta! It was an occasion when other places rose higher than our own good town.

At Macon the thermometer registered 104°, at Griffin, Columbus and West Point it marked an even 100°; Greenville, S. C., with its mountain setting, showed the same temperature, and all over Georgia and the adjoining states the mercury played between 95 and 100°. These figures were obtained from the signal service office at the customhouse. The observer declares that the highest point reached by his instrument was 97°, but, as he said, "I am perhaps fifty feet from the ground, and the altitude may make the difference."

"Sunday was the hottest day Atlanta has had in twenty years," said Dr. F. B. Palmer, of Jacobs's drug store, who is somewhat of an enthusiast on thermometers. "I have watched the weather closely ever since I have been in Atlanta, from a range perhaps of a dozen thermometers. On Sunday, in the shade, I had the thermometer to register ninety-eight, while one slightly exposed went to 102. This beats any weather I have ever seen recorded in Atlanta."

So it will be seen there was only one degree between the signal service and Palmer's ther-any weather I have ever seen recorded in Atlanta."

So it will be seen there was only one degree between the signal service and Palmer's thermometers—the one registering 97° and the other marking 98° But, Dr. Palmer's instrument, slightly exposed, marked 102. And thousands of people in the city were more exposed to the rays of the sun on Sunday than the thermometer belonging to Dr. Palmer.

Owing to the balloon ascension at St. Louis, the signal office was ordered to take observations all during the day, the object being to test the observations made in the balloon as it rose from the earth, with those noticed on terrafirms. In detail, the observations were as follows:

mercury reached was greater than they had mercury reached was greater than they nad ever seen it before.

"The hottest place in Atlanta," said Signal Service Assistant O'Donnell," "is the pavement between the Kimball house and the car shed."

"Why?"

"Because the rays of the sun strike perpendicularly on that spot from ten o'clock in the morning until the sun goes down. There is no telling what degree would have been recorded had the instrument been placed there on Sunday."

on Sunday."

The hottest day in 1886 was the 14th day of August, when at half past two the mercury marked 94°. The hottest summer Atlanta ever had was the summer of 1878, when the daily maximum for three months was 94.6°.

Ph.6°.

Not that for one day?

But averaging 94° for three months! On 25th of May, 1878 it was 94, from the 25d to the 26th of June, 1878, the mercury averaged 95°; on the 19th of July, it went up to 102. But for three solid months, June, July, and August, in 1878, the thermometer averaged 94.6.

The effect upon the people of the city was noticeable. Any one standing on Jacobs's corner intent upon watching the crowds that passed by would have seen about as unhappy looking people as one cares to see. The men wore their vests open and carried their hats in their hands, women passed by with flushed were returning home crying with heat and vexaticn. In the houses where poor people congregated, the piarzas and roofs contained more sleepers Sunday night than the rooms, windows and doors were open, inviting the breeze that would not come. At the Kimball house, the guests were in a limpid condition, the arcades and corridors being filled long past the usual hour for retirement.

What prevented a large number of sun-strokes, was the fact that it was Sunday, and no hard manual labor was being performed. Had laborers been exposed to the sun in the fields and on top of houses in process of con-struction, there is no sayling how many casual-ies would have been reported. It was a bless-ed thing for Atlanta that the day was Sunday. The sodawater fountains did a great business all day. Before eight o'clock the counters were crowded, and the mixers of beverages were being worked almost to death, there was no cessation. During church hours the throng was not perceptibly decreased, and when the congregations were dismissed and the people began to return home, men and women stood a half each deep about the soda fountains waiting their time to be served. The sales at the different places had been large on Friday and Saturday, but they exceeded anything yet reached on Sunday. One fountain consumed 1,500 pounds of ice, and one dealer used 65 gallons of milk to say nothing of the countless number of glasses of soda, ginger ale and the score or more drinks that can be gotten at the drug stores.

The four days, ending last night were the best four days trade the soda fountains of Atlanta have yet done. There must be some good reason for this increase, and as there was no crowd in the city, no attraction or anything to draw outside people, the only explanation of the matter is that the great heat made people thirst for something cool to drink.

Yesterday, the sun rose clear and bright, and people looked ahead to another oppressive day. The mercury rose high, but did not reach the heights of the previous day. And a cool breeze every now and then would blow from Kennesaw, and as the wind would change, would come from the rugged sides of Stone Mountain. Towards noon, clouds began to gather, and the distant rumble of thunder indicated the approach of a hunder storm. The barometer had been falling all day, and those who had been watching it, confidently predicted rain.

And it did rain—a little. Just at 6 o'clock day.

The sodawater fountains did a great busibarometer had been falling all day, and those who had been watching it, confidently predicted rain.

And it did rain—a little. Just at 6 o'clock the first few drops fell, and the crowds upon the street did not even make for shelter, so glad were they to see the flood-gates of heaven open. But they did not stay open long. Just enough rain fell to cool the atmosphere; not enough to lay the dust. But there was a vast difference between the atmosphere before and after. It had been swelteringly hot, but the few drops of rain and the cool breeze that accompanied it made it delightfully cool.

The thermometer yesterday reached 95 degrees, but did not get any higher. The people perhaps suffered more from the heat yesterday than they did on Sunday, for many were working who before had been quietly resting. Notwithstanding the great heat, but few casualties were reported, the only one of consequence being on Marietta street about 11 o'clock. A country woman named Sims came to the city to do some trading, and was, overcome by the heat. She was taken to a hospital, and last night was in a bad condition.

The Heat Throughout the State. SAVANNAH, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—Relief has come to Savannah this evening in the way of a lower thermometer. For several days the quicksilver has been often at par and has been quoted still higher. This afternoon a falling rain, followed by a clearing sky, has cooled the atmosphere and made it possible for existence to be borne. No deaths nor sunstrokes have been reported as resulting. Yesterday at four o'clock the thermometer of the signal office mercury never goes as high as the quicksilver in any other spot of the city. Today the heat was intense until the clouds descended. Only six times sence the signal station was established in Savannah has the mercury reached 100, never before in June. July 16 and 18, 1875; July 12, 1876; July 29, 1877; August 20, 1878; July 12, 1879, and July 22, 1881, are the only dates when the mercury has touched the 100 mark. The present hot spell is remarkable for its occurrence so early in the summer.

touched the 100 mark. The present hot spell is remarkable for its occurrence so early in the summer.

The New York, Boston, and Baltimore steamers are crowded every trip, and people from along the coast are flocking to cooler places. If the hot weather continues long, railroad and steamship men say that the exodus will be heavier than it has ever been before. At eight o'clock this evening the temperature is 80° Fahrenheit.

Columbus, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—There was a temporary break this afternoon in the excessively hot weather which has prevailed for several days. A splendid rain fell about 4 o'clock, and it is still raining gently. On Saturday the thermometer ranged from 95 to as high as 104. Sunday was even hotter, if possible, and many people sought refuge in the mountains, only to find the thermometer playing around 95 in the shade. The nights have also been most uncomfortable. There have been no prostrations from heat, and the indications now are that we have passed the worst of the present hot spell.

MACON, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—The heat of Sunday was something terrific. People who were not compelled to go out stayed in doors until the cool of the day.

Dr. J. J. Brantly, of Mercer university, who went up to Forsyth to preach, fainted from the heat.

Dr. E. W. Warren had not sufficiently recovered from his prostration of Saturday to fill his pulpit. There was no soda water or cooling drinks to be had at any of the drug stores or stands, and the suffering was terrible in consequence.

The highest temperature in the shade, by J. The highest temperature in the shade, by J. M. Boardman's registering thermometer, was 100, the lowest being early in the morning, 74, giving a mean temperature for the twenty-four hours beginning at midnight Saturday night of 87°. A sun exposure in the afternoon ran up to 110 at Joseph E. Wells's jewelry store.

Today the heat has been less intense, The highest point reached was 98 and the lowest 74, giving a mean of 87°, one degree less than yesterday.

This is partly attributable to the stiff breeze which began blowing about 6 p. m. Sunday and continued until noon today when large thunder clouds formed, one from the souththunder clouds formed, one from the southwest, getting near enough to give a light sprinkle in the city. The afternoon has been sunless and sultry, with no breeze, and the night is fearfully hot, The people complained of inability to sleep in consequence of the oppressive heat last night. So far there has been but one case reported of sun stroke, which occurred to a field hand in East Macon at noon Saturday. The patient has not recovered. mosphere is now cooler.

ATHENS, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—The thermometer at the university, reported by Professor Charbonier, recorded at its highest point ninety-seven on Sunday and today, which is the highest point reached this year. The highest point in June of last year was eighty-seven. The reports to the weather bureau at Augusta are excessive, being sent from the Georgia railroad depot, one of the hettest places in 100 miles.

The thermometer at Tallulah yesterday was up in the nineties. Those well informed say the last three days were the hottest in four or five years. Everybody was intensely oppressed Sunday, but no casualties are reported. The streets were almost deserted in the afternoon, nearly everybody remaining at home. A breeze arose this afternoon, and it is much cooler. The thermometer at 8 o'clock was ninety.

The effect upon the people of the city was noticeable. Any one standing on Jacobs's corner intent upon watching the crowds that passed by would have seen about as unhappy looking people as one cares to see. The men wore their vests open and carried their hats in their hands, women passed by with flushed faces, and young children who had been perhaps dragged to church and Sunday school were returning home crying with heat and verytics. In the houses with heat and today 100. On Sunday afternoon between all the return on the streets. On Saturday the thermometer reached 103; on Sunday 104 and today 100. On Sunday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock the thermometer in the hall of a prominent lawyer's house in Summerville. a prominent lawyer's 4ouse in Summerville registered 106. No sunstrokes have occurred so far as can been learned. At 6:30 this afternoon a heavy rain fell and tonight the atmosphere is considerably cooler.

The Weather Elsewhere.

Washington June 20.—The warm weather which has prevailed for the last few days in nearly every part of the country continues, and at the signal office, it is said that immediate relief is to be expected only from local thunder storms. Should the winds shift to the east, however, it would have the effect of reducing the temperature in states bordering on the ocean. The present warm wave originated in the gulf states about the 14th inst., and spread over the entire country. A small portion of New England and states bordering on the great lakes, being the only sections which did not experience the torrid heat yesterday. At 7 o'clock this morning the thermometer registered 72° in Washington, 14° in Cincinnati and 79° in St. Louis, while in Boston and Rochester, where cloudy weather and easternly winds prevailed, the thermometer indicated only 55 to 57°. The maximum heat in Washington today was 88°.

Bloomington, Ill., June 20.—The heat has been dreadful hereabouts for nearly a week, culminating yesterday with a record of 116 degrees in the sun at 3 p. m. and 90 degrees in houses usually considered cool. Saturday evening the country was swept by a heavy gale from the west. Grain ready to cut was badly tangled by the wind.

Storm in Richmond. The Weather Elsewhere.

Storm in Richmond. Storm in Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., June 20.—A heavy wind and rain at 7 p. m., did considerable damage to shade trees here, and in some instances unroofed houses. Some of the wires of the Electric company were broken down by falling trees and many of the lights are not burning. Another heavy rain storm, accompanied by severe thunder and lightning, passed over this city between eleven and twelve o'clock tonight. Two electric light poles were struck by lightning, and all that part of the city which is dependent upon electric illumination is now in darkness. The thermometer at three o'clock indicated 96 degress. By midnight the temperature had fallen to 70.

THE PENITENTIARY COMMITTEE Will Hold a Meeting Today and Decide What It Will Do.

What It Will Do.

Yesterday, the following members of the house arrived in Atlanta: Messrs. Huff and Schofield, of Bibb; Ham, of Hall; Harrison and Terrell. These gentlemen constitute the sub-penitentiary committee, appointed by the full committee, to visit and report upon the condition of the various camps.

Hon. W. A. Huff, of Bibb, is chairman, and at the short session yesterday, they chose Mr. Schofield, of Bibb, as secretary. The principal keeper of the penitentiary was notified that the committee would visit his office today, and inspect the books and records pertaining to the different convict camps. The principal keeper will probably go before the committee also and make such report as he thinks best, holding himself ready to answer all questions and give all information the committee may ask.

It is not definitely known whether the committee may

It is not definitely known whether the comnittee will personally visit all the convict camps. Considering the fact that within a short while the legislature will assemble, it is doubtful if the committee could make the entire rounds, giving to each camp the proper attention the importance of the subject demands.

portance of the subject demands.

Last night it was reported about the hotels that grave charges had been made against a certain sub-lessee and a particular camp. The nature of the charges could not be ascertained, but enough was learned to justify the assertion that it is very probable that a sub-committee will be appointed to visit this particular camp, investigate and report upon the matter to which their attention had been called.

The Sequel to a Sunday Love Tale—Property Hunting an Owner.

Yesterday the Constitution had a chapter on the course of true love, which recited the story of a young lady whose two lovers were bent on fighting a duel for right of way to the fair one's heart. She had the officer to frighten one of them off and then had him bring the laxwed out of the had been after two lovers wandered off in the gloaming—or something to that effect.

Yesterday an officer was telephoned to come to a point near the carshed, where it was said the young lady was going on like mad, and fears were entertained that she would destroy herself. The officer went to the place, but found her not.

The next trace of this interesting young woman is her room furniture, now stored at the stationhouse. A drayman carted it up and down the streets for hours yesterday, but finding no claimant and no place to deposit it, he drove up to the stationhouse and there unloaded it.

What He Says in Reply to "Tax Payer" on the Bond Question.

We have been requested to publish the fol-lowing from the Macon Telegraph of yester-

We have been requested to publish the following from the Macon Telegraph of yesterday:

THE BOND QUESTION.

In this issue of the Telegraph is published a communication from ex-Governor Bullock touching the "repudiated bonds" of Georgia. Ex-Governor Bullock writes in reply to "Tax-Payer," whose article appeared in these columns on June 5th, and is entitled to a hearing. His views are expressed in the clear, terse language of the business man, and need no comments from the Telegraph. The subject so far as the state itself is concerned is res adjudicata and the Telegraph's position relative to a reopening has already been strongly expressed.

BULLOCK'S REJOINDER.

Editor Telegraph: I happened to be in New York when your edition of the 5th was issued, containing two columns on the "bond question," signed "Tax Payer," and for this reason have only now read it. In that communication abuse of "Bullock" is substituted for facts or argument in support of repudiation; and were it not for your editorial indorsement of your correspondent as being "one of the most gifted writers and purest patriots in Georgia," I would not notice this evidence of the high position you assign to him. In deference to your indorsement I wish to respond.

It will be impossible for me to follow in detail the line of vituperative rhetoric poured forth by your correspondent without taking up too much of your space and fatiguing your readers. I will therefore content myself with a brief rejoinder.

I wish to say first that I never "fled the state." After my resignation of the office of governor, it was, for personol and family reasons, more agreeable to spend as much of my time as possible in New York state with my aged parents. There was no secret as to my whereabouts, and on frequent occasions I met the governor and the attorney-general of Georgia, the state's financial agent, chairman of committees, counsel, etc., in New York ety, when requested by them to do so, and when officially repuested to respond to my cases in court here I came to Georgi

No traind in the issue of bonds during my term has ever been officially charged, and none will ever be proven.

The defenders of repudiation do not dare submit the question at issue to our own state courts, but when the subject is agitated they set up a howl of denunciation against "Bullock" and the legislature which passed the laws.

Thank God the day has gone by in Georgia when her sober, solid men can be blinded or bulldozed by this sort of chaff. If we have had the property or money of other people for our own beneat we are willing and ready to pay it when our courts so decide.

Referring to this bond committee's report from which your correspondent quotes so copiously, I said and printed in 1872, and I repeat it now:

"Briefly recapitulated, the opinion of the 'bond committee' and the decision of that legislature seems to have been:

"I. That where the parties who loaned money to the state or managed the railroads and advanced the money to build them, were republicans, I did not construct the laws and execute them in the mainer and at the times the committee than I should have done.

"I that in these instances the laws which I did the state or managed the railroads and advanced the money to build them, were republicans, I did not construe the laws and execute them in the manner and at the times the committee think I should have done.

"2. That in these instances the laws which I did execute were unconstitutional.

"3. That the legislature which enacted the laws was a 'bastard."

"4. That these republicans, by sustaining the acts of congress had ordained 'an un-Godly chalice for his fellows' and 'must not murmur if to his own lips the bitter cup be pressed by the avenging fate of a better day." In other words while these democrats are in power, republicans must not expect the honest payment of just dobts."

It is true my republicans must not expect the honest payment of just dobts."

It is true my republicans must not expect the honest payment of just dobts."

It is true my republican successor vetoed the bill which brought this bond committee into existence, but he did this because their sitting would be an unnecessary expense. He had already transmitted to the legislature a full and complete statement of the amount and character of the bonds issued during my administration, and only the correctness of that statement was proved by the committee.

As to myself and the report of the bond committee, I desire to say that when I resigned the oilice of governor, there was no charge against me of official misconduct. The charges subsequently brought against Grant. The committees were not assisted words were attributed to and put in the mouths of witnesses which they never uttered. For instance, Mr. Sage, chief eugineer of the Air-Line railroad, is made to say that I approached him with a corrupt proposition with relation to bonds indorsed for that road. When, in fact, as he afterwards explained, he had nothing whatever to do with bonds, and the conversation with me to which he testified was about lands on the line of the then proposed road. Captain Conly also said:

"The report of the then proposed road faith to the state has, it seems, been ca on the governor, has been grossly garbed and carefully recorded."

Colonel Atkinson, another witness, speaking of the report as published, says:

"Much of my testimony is suppressed or omitted and much of that printed is so condensed that it do colonel Burns also said:

"The greater part of my testimony is either suppressed or omitted in the printed report."

But notwithstanding all this desire to convict me, the committee were not able to report any official act of mine for impeachment, and contented themselves by procuring from a convenient grand jury indictments against me as being liable for other officials alleged misdoings. In none of these, however, was there any allegation of my having official yor personally committed any fraid in the issue or indorsement of state bonds, or of having demanded or received bribes or compensation for such issue.

On the trial of these indicaments in court the angular process. The content of the content of the content of milesance in office, and those of us who are still alive enjoy the respect of our fellow-citizens in the communities where we now reside. It is, therefore, late in the day to now rehearse these old, stale scandals as a reason for refusing a hearing in our courts to the state's creditors who have been robbed by the partisan action of a legislative majority usurping the judicial functions of government.

Nor is it a good defense to say that the government which authorized the bonds was composed of "greedy beasts and birds flung in upon us in the wake of war," for it is not true. The chief officials of that government, legislative, judicial and excentities the hear bedore and during the war, and who did their duty on our side during the war. Socially, intellectually and financially these officials were the peers of any occupying those positions before or since their terms. The judicial fofficers of the supreme and superior courts appointed by me were not excelled in personal character and legal learning even by the present occupants of those high positions is Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Trading in stocks today was marked by some little animation in the morning hours, due to encouragement given by small purchases for the London account. But during the afternoon the dullness was equal to anything witnessed on Saturday. There was a hardening tendency to money late in the day, which checked to a certain extent the prevailing bullish feeling. The opening was firm to strong at advances over Saturday's final figures of from ½ to ½ per cent, the latter in Jersey Central. Reading was active in early trading, and there was fair business in Pacific Mail, but the remainder were for the most part extremely dull. Further fractional advances were established in the first hour, and although an undertone was till strong, very little progress was made after that time. In the afternoon trading was marked by a change in the temper of speculation, but in the extreme dullness there was no impression made upon prices, and the market closed very dull and steady at insignificant changes from the opening figures. Exchange.

Total sales for the day were only 164,000 shares. The active list is generally a shade higher this evening, but in no case are final changes for more than small fractions, except Wheeling and Lake Erie, which is report on cotton futures today, say: Considerable animation was shown in old crop contracts today, mainly under the pressure of the general long inter-est showing an inclination to liquidate with conaderable selling, stop orders and more or less doing on short selling. Under this pressure there was a decline of 10@11 points, followed by a little more steadiness, as a shrinkage of some 5@6 points since last Monday induced a desire to cover and take profits where margins were clean. The new crop, in the meantime, held fairly, owing in part to advices reporting dry weather in several sections, and on the late months recent sellers have also covered eatures of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitut CHICAGO, June 20—The wheat market was dull and sagging all day. The main cause was the lack of support which the market received, and ever the of support which the market received, and ever the present fact that considerable wheat yet remains to be marketed. Stocks in store here are a bugbear to speculators, and shipments, though large, are not sufficient to satisfy them. The visible supply statement, which showed a decrease of 894,000 bushels, cut a little figure in the market. It was about expected, as it was known that all of the grain chartered during the past week has not left the seaboard. The announcement of the appointment of a receiver The announcement of the appointment of a receiver for Keishaw & Co. was one of the weakening features, as it went to show that no hope was now entertained that the firm would pull through. There was general selling of wheat in the last half hour of was general selling or wheat in the last half hour of the morning session and during the afternoon ses-sion, causing prices to weaken very considerably. These was some demand for winter wheat for ship-ment; also for spring wheat, though the latter was rather more quiet than at the close of last week. rather more quiet than at the close of last week. Speculators are doing some new business, but ar rather inclined to trade on a limited scale. July opened at 72½ and sold down to 70%c—the closing figure. June started at 71½c and declined to 68½c—

Rather a limited trade was reported in corn today, the market ruling comparatively quiet with transactions confined to local operators, very few outside tions confined to local operators, very few outside orders being received. Reports generally were favorable to the growing crop. The market sympathized with wheat to a considerable extent. Receipts continue moderate, The market opened a shade firmer at the closing figures of Saturday, then became active, fluctuated somewhat and closed about ½c lower than Saturday. July opened at 37½c and closed at 85%c.

Oats were dull and waek. July delivery ranged ½6%c lower and the more deferred deliveries declined ½6%c. The dullness generally prevailing had an unfavorable influence, which tended to check the desire to buy on speculative account. July opened at 26%c and closed at 25%c.

check the desire to buy on speculative account. July opened at 26½ and closed at 25½c.

A little more life was manifested in the provision market, still trading was not very large. Offerings on speculative accout were fair and the demand was not particularly urgent. Prices averaged a trifle trifle lower, and the market closed quiet, July and August commanding the preference. The inquiry for shipmen was rather light, and holders are not pressing their property on the market. Receipts were fair and shipments quite liberal. July lard opened at 6.32½ and sold down to 6.25—the closing figure. July ribs started at 7.35 and declined to 7.30—the closing figure. The following was the range in the leading futures in Chicago today:

LONDON, June 20.—The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: The continued favorable weather is causing wheat to ear in earlier districts. The crop has immensely to ear in earlier districts. The crop has immensely improved and gives greater promise than on the corresponding period in 1886. Plants require rain, but the outlook is vastly better than at the beginning of the month. Deliveries of native wheat are lessening rapidly, and values have fallen 1s. The sales of English wheat during the past week were 39,738 quarters at 35s 1d, against 43,176 quarters at 31s 4d during the corresponding week last year. Trade in foreign wheat is almost at a standstill. The break up of the Chicago ring made little difference in spot values, as supplies at London continued small, but prices were somewhat in the buyer's favor. There would doubtless be a bad break if a large quantity of foreign wheat should be sent to be sold. The demand for flour is restrained, and prices are somewhat in favor of buyers. At Glasgow valsoid. The demand for nour is restrained, and prices are somewhat in favor of buyers. At Glasgow values declined 6d@ls. In today's market wheat was of a holding character. There were no buyers. Prices were nominally is lower. Flour was dull at a decline of 6d. Corn was slow.

The annual exercises of West End academy last evening, were attended by a large number of friends and patrons of the school. The entertainment opened with a display of calisthenies by the little boys and girls of the primary department. The little ones by their skill and ease spoke volumes for the training of their teacher, Miss Ione Newman. A pleasant feature was an masing farce entitled "The Persecuted Man, a Tale of a Mother-in-law," Miss Eunice Waters took the part of the mother-in-law; Miss Ada Denham that of the sister-in-law; Mr. Sam Hope was an excellent persecuted husband; Miss Emma Potts took the part of the wife, while Mr. Julian Harris amused everybody by his admo-Julian Harris amused everybody by his admo-nitions that "Too much mother-in-law isn't satisfied Bride.

The event of the day in stationhouse society circles yesterday, was the civil welding of the hitherto informal tie existing between Cornelius Thompson, a colored citizen, aged seventy-two, and Nellie Brown, a dusky maiden of fifty-eight summers—very long summers, too.

The ceremony was performed by a divine of their own color, who had kindly left his dray for the occasion, and with apron for vestment and the stationhouse hearth for altar, he tied them with the legal tie that holds until death or a divorce decree severs it.

and the stationhouse nearth for aftar, he then them with the legal tie that holds until death or a divorce decree severs it.

When asked if he would take the woman to be his lawful wife, under the usual conditions, Thompson gladly and quickly answered "yes," and then held his breath in painful expectancy to hear the reply from Nellie. When the question was put she hesitated for several seconds, and then, in a dry voice that boded no good for the wedded future of Cornelius, she replied "Well, I reckon I'll have to."

The ceremony concluded, the celebrant commanded the groom to kiss his blushless bride, and he complied with a haste and gusto which rather tended to produce the impression that this would be his last chance.

They then left the stationhouse together, going toward the carshed, but before they had passed out of sight, the woman was seen to turn away from the old man and walk rapidly if another direction. The aged husband looked sadly after her for a moment, as if paralyzed by survives and then bending his head, fol-sadly after her for a moment, as if paralyzed by surprise, and then bending his head, fol-lowed sorrowfully in her wake.

IS IT INCENDIARISM?

An Humphr ies Street House Twice Fired—Completely Destroyed Last Night.

An alarm of fire was turned in last night a few minutes before 9 o'clock from box 352, at the corner of Whitehall and Hood streets. The fire department promptly responded, but by the time the two miles had been traversed the fire had gained such headway that the house in which it originated was destroyed.

This house, a three-room frame, No. 83 Humphries street, owned by Ben Green, colored, is the same one for which an alarm was turned in Saturday night. The family were away at some entertainment at the time, but some of the furniture was saved.

The adjoining house, a four-room cottage, was also somewhat damaged on the roof and the side next the Green house.

There is good reason to suspect incendiarism, and the police were promptly given the clews. An Humphries Street House Twice Fired Several complaints were made by telephone at the stationhouse last night against the Salvation Army. Up to 10 o'clock last night the singing and shrieking at the army "barracks" were uproarous in the extreme.

John Jemison, a negro boy of about fifteen years, was lodged in the station house last night charged with the theft of a watch from the house of William Worthy, colored, on Porter's alley. He had traded the watch but it was recovered. The man who lost the watch did not want to make a case against the boy, thinking himself fully satisfied by the recovery of the stolen property.

Charles Howard, the negro who was arrested for drawing a razor from his boot, with supposed intent to make mince meat of a colored dame, had a hearing before the recorder yesterday, and was fined $25.75, and required to give bond to answer for assault with intent to commit murder.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS Refuse to Say Anything About "The Flag',

Embroglio. In the absence of President W. A. Wright, Vice-president John Milledge called the Fulton county Confederate Veterans to order at the courthouse last night. A large number of old soldiers were present, and the meeting was interesting from the beginning to the end. Several new members were elected, after which the association settled down to the business of the evening.

which the association settled down to the business of the evening.

Colonel George T. Fry offered a resolution which looked to the appointment of a committee of five to memorialize the legislature to change the manner of appropriating the one hundred dollars it now gives, every three years, to old soldiers who lost a limb in the service. At present, those who come under the provision of the act are entitled to receive, every three years, the sum of one hundred dollars, in order that they may replace their artificial limbs or use it in any other way as they may deem best. that they may replace their artificial limbs or use it in any other way as they may deem best. The memorial that will be presented to the legislature asks that soldiers who were permanently disabled by the war without having lost a limb, such as those who are blindfrom the effects of wounds, be entitled to the benefit of the appropriation; and the memorial also asks that instead of giving the money in one payment every three. ing the money in one payment every three years, that the state divide it into three equal parts and give one-third every year. It is thought that the money will more perfectly aid in relieving the wants of the helpless by this division than it does under the present

The committee to prepare the memorial is as follows: Colonel George T. Fry, Captain C. T. Furlow, Amos Fox, W. G. Newman and T. B. Wilson.

T. Furlow, Amos Fox, W. G. Newman and T. B. Wilson.

The committee appointed to co-operate with the Ladies' Memorial association toward supplying head-stones for soldiers' graves, reported that suitable stones could be procured for $1.50. The committee was asked to continue to act, and to solicit contributions from citizens for the purpose of supplying head-stones. Dr. Smith, a newly elected member, contributed $25 toward the purpose, which was received with enthusiastic applause.

Colonel George T. Fry offered a lengthy set of resolutions in regard to the action of certain Grand Army Republic men, and other high officials in the north, and the return of the confederate war flags. The tone of the resolutions was condemnatory of the action of the men alluded to, and expressed the loyalty of the south for the union and the flag. The resolutions were on the whole peppery and excited considerable uproar.

Colonel Fry advocated the adoption of the resolutions, and Captain Milledge, resigning the chair to Dr. Divine, took the floor and opposed them. The debate upon their adoption was lively and spirited, and was intensely interesting. Captain Milledge moved to table the resolutions, which was finally done.

Captain Newman moved that Governor Gordon be invited to address the association at the next regular meeting. The motion was carried, and the president and secretary instructed

Mr. EDITOR—Allow me, through the columns of your most excellent paper, to acknowledge receipt of a splendid "Knights Templar" outfit, delivered to me at my home on the afternoon of Saturday last by Sir Knight J. A. Gray. The surprise was absolute, but most pleasant. The entire outfit was of the finest quality. The sword, exceedingly handsome, and made tenfold more estimable by the names of the donors, beautifully and tastefully etched upon the blade, viz: D. O. Dougherty, James A. Gray, J. Z. Lawshe, B. F. Moore, J. R. Wilkinson, F. P. Rice, B. B. Crew and Captain A. J. West.

The splendid gift is prized for its intrinsic worth, but much more as an expression of regard from the friends and fellow Sir Knights by whom it was bestowed.

Governor Gordon was not in his office yes terday, and but little business of interest was transacted at the capitel. The courts in session yesterday were engaged with routine busi ness, no special cases being on the dockets. The judges are doing a great deal of work and are rapidly clearing the dockets.

GOVERNOR GORDON was not in his effice at the capitol yesterday, having carried out his intention of visiting Milledgeville for the purpose of attending the commencement exercises of the Middle Georgia Agricultural college, and also with a view of giving a personal inspection to the condition of the insane asylum at that place. It was not because of any comat that place. It was not because of any com-plaint or rumor as to the condition of the asy-lum that induced the governor to make the trip, but, on the contrary, was the fulfillment of a long standing desire on his part to visit an institution that is regarded as one of the best managed in the whole country. The governor will perhaps return to the city tonight or to-morrow.

No business of any importance was transacted at the excutive department yesterday because of the governor's absence. No commissions could be issued, and as his private correspondence remained unopened but little new business was received. Hon. H. C. Hamilton, clerk of the superior court of Whitfield county, recently appointed by Hon. William T. Theasurer Harreman was in his office at the capitol yesterday, and callers at the treasury were very glad to see Colonel Hardeman looking so much improved. While his restoration to health will be necessarily slow on account of the necellar disorder there is restoration to health will be necessarily slow on account of the peculiar disorder, there is nothing to prevent his complete recovery. Already he is growing stronger each day, and begins to feel as if he had not had a severe attack. But little business was transacted at the treasury yesterday, the only warrants paid being two—one on account of Adjutant General Kell and the other for Colonel W. S. Bassinger, a member of the board of visitors.

THE MANDAMUS case of the Mutual Reserve THE MANDAMUS case of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Insurance company, to compel the comptroller general to issue it a license to do business in the state, was set for hearing on Saturday. Owing to complainant's counsel being sick the hearing was postponed until Saturday week. The comptroller-general and the attorney general are perfectly satisfied that the position assumed by them will be sustained Comptrediction.

Comptrediction.

Comptrediction are a question, that he thought the insurance business in the state was of such proportion now as to justify the organization of a special insurance department, with a commissioner of insurance to look after the matter. The comptroller is now by virtue of his office, the insurance commissioner of the state, and it is his intention to introduce at the next session a bill, in which the laws relating to the government of insurance companies are more fully stated, and the obligations and requirements resting upon the companies of the bill will be the authority given the comptroller to make examinations and also establishing a standard among the companies. These features result from three facts: First, the law requires all companies doing business in the state to have a capital of $100,000 invested in stock and bonds, or in mortgages on real estate; second, foreign companies are required to deposit $25,000 of state or United States bonds with the comproller for the protection of policy holders; in case of life home companies $100,000 must be deposited as security, and foreign life companies must present a certificate from the commissioner of their state attesting the fact that the amount is on deposit there; third, the law requires the company to file a statement in regard to all the above facts, showing their assets and liabilities, how they are invested and how they are divided. Under the present arrangement, the comptroller is very ant to be imposed upon, because of the reason, that the capital of the companies may become impaired, and no knowledge of such fact reach him. At present, he has no power to make examinations, which he regards as essential. The standard sought to be established by the new bill is the proper relations between assets and liabilities consistent with a sound financial condition. Under the present law there is no authority to pros county for collection.

COLONEL TOWERS, principal keeper of the penitentiary, received on yesterday a communication from Judge Clark, of the superior court, asking him to produce the body of Will Malone in court, as he was needed as a witness. Colonel Towers issued an order addressed to the lessee of the camp ordering him to turn Malone over to the sheriff whenever his presence was needed.

Colonel Towers, of the penitentiary department, was yesterday notified that the subcommittee of the house would call upon him today for some information relating to the convicts. The committee is now in the city, and after making an investigation of the records, will doubtless proceed to make a personal visit will doubtless proceed to make a personal visit to the different camps.

THE TREASTER is making the necessary arrangements for the semi-annual payment of the interest on the state's bonds. The money is now in New York to meet the amount.

The soluciting committee, composed of Commissioner Henderson, Colonel Redding and Mark W.
Johnston will call upon the citizens again today for contributions for the "farmer's convention."

Three courts were in session yesterday in the county courthouse—the city, superior and circuit courts. No important matters were adjudicated in any of them, although a good many cases were tried.

In the city court, Judge VanEpps presiding, the case of Farrel vs. Clark was tried, resulting in a mistrial. The case of Stephens vs. John Alexander consumed the remainder of the day. The jury returned a sealed verdict late in the afternoon. There will be no session of the city court today, all the cases having been sent over till tomorrow.

The superior court met at 9 o'clock, Judge of the city court today, all the cases having been sent over till tomorrow.

The superior court met at 9 o'clock, Judge Marshall J. Clarke presiding. The case of Clark vs. Sawtell, begun last Friday, was resumed, but not concluded. The plaintiff is represented by Colonel Thomas P. Westmoreland and the defendant is represented by Messrs. Mynatt and Carter.

The Atlanta circuit court met yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, Judge Richard H. Clark! presiding. The court was occupied in trying several jail cases. Charles Henderson was tried on the charge of burglary. The jury, after some deliberation, found him guilty and the court will pass sentence upon him today. Charlie Allen was convicted of a similar offense and the sentence upen him was likewise suspended. Jimmy Williams was arraigned on the charge of burglary. He plead "guilty," and the court sentenced him to serve seven years in the penitentiary. Charles Allen, the same defendant, who was convicted early in the day, was tried on another charge of burglary, and again the jury convicted him. The court will meet this morning at 9 o'clock, and Judge Clark will, he says, rush through the criminal basiness.

Tomorrow the superior court will begin the hearing of divorce cases, of which a score or more await adjudication. Some of these suits are replete with sensational points, and doubtless the court house will be crowded while they are being tried.

Two divorce suits were filed yesterday in the clerk's office of the superior court. Mrs. Fanny E. Daniel desires to be separated from her husband, L. L. The other petition was filed by Sarah Latham, who wishes the court to grant her a divorce from her husband, Adam Latham, whom she charges with cruelty.

Mr. R. Dickenson Falls Into a Fire in the Woods and is Fearfully Burned. Four or five days ago, Mr. R. Dickenson left Atlanta with the intention of going to Chattanooga. Being a very poor man he could not buy a railway ticket and he resolved to make the journey on foot. After proceeding about ten miles from the city he halted to reston the readedle. He had a cripsack with him which roadside. He had a gripsack with him which contained some food. He also had some ground coffee and a coffee pot. He built a fire to prepare his supper. Just how the accident came about is not known, but in some way he fell into the fire and was dreadfully hurred. He was alone at the time. way he fell into the fire and was dreadfully burned. He was alone at the time. Fortunately a wagon was passing toward the city and the driver was attracted by his screams for help. He hastened to the spot and found Dickenson in a shocking condition. He was burned in many ploces. He was brought to Atlanta and placed in the Ivy street hospital for treatment. When he reached the hospital he was nearly dead, and the doctors saw at a glance that his case was a hopeless one. They did all they could for him, however, and succeeded in driving away the terrible pains which almost distracted him. This was done by the use of opiates. Late Sunday night the patient died of his burns. Yesterday he was buried.

LOTS! Talladega, Ala., June 29, 1887. THE TALLADEGA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT Company will offer for sale at auction some choice lots in the city of Talladega.

Their holdings consist of nearly 4,000 acres of selected property, comprising some valuable ore lands and Lake park, a beautiful suburb. They also hold 20,000 feet of centrally located city property and one of the principal hotels. The ore (brown hematite) in Talladega valley is known to be richer in iron and containing less phosphorous than the ores used in the iron centers of Alabama, and at least one furnace is being supplied with ore that is freighted through this city every week. Heretofore depending solely on agricultural resources Tal-ladega has awakened to the fact that the vast deposits of iron, good transportation and cheap labor fit her for an industrial center, and the manage ment of the company are determined that she shall The specifications for a furnace of 100 tons capacity have been received and accepted, and a guarantee is given each purchaser of a property on day of sale that a furnace shall be built. An ice factory is being built, a cotton seed oil mill, and sash, door and blind factory were established some time since. Other industries are contemplating this point with a view of locating.

The three railways in operation, with the fourth, the Macon, LaGrange and Birmingham railroad, which will be under construction by day of sale, give this point good transportation facilities. This city is renowned for its summer climate and healthfulness, and is expected that many will in-

Sec. 3. All laws or ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

The petition prepared by the committee of the chamber or commerce was presented and Messrs. Langston, Chamberlain, Jacob Haas, Griffin and Hoke Smith, members of the committee, occupied seats in the chamber. The ordinance as presented had been drawn up by this committee, after consultation with the city attorney and the members of the committee were anxious to see it massed.

city attorney and the members of the committee were anxious to see it passed.

After the ordinance had been read, Mr. Angier presented the following amendment:

And it shall also be unlawful for any person to directly or indirectly, charge or receive any commissions on the sales of any futures in wheat, cotton, lard, meat, or any similar articles, or to be directly or indirectly interested in any profits arising from any deals or transactions in any future contracts on such, or similar articles.

Mr. Angier said his purpose in offering this amendment was to ent was to DO AWAY WITH MIDDLE MEN. He expressed his sympathy with the purpose of the ordinance, but thought that it was not sufficiently plain as to the "middle men," as he termed them.

Mr. Collier thought the ordinance explicit and that it covered all that Mr. Angier sought

Mr. Mecaslin moved a reference to a committee, but withdrew his motion at the instance of Mr. Collier, who urged immediate action upon the grounds that the new fiscal year begins on July first and the matter ought to be decided before then.

Mr. Rice also favored immediate action, and moved that the rules be suspended to allow the chamber of commerce committee to be heard.

This motion prevailing, Mr. Hoke Smith, spokesman for the committee, gave a brief and pointed explanation of the ordinance, showing that it had been drawn especially with a view to making a distinction between legitimate and illegitimate dealing. He pointed out how the ordinance covers all that Mr. Angier contemplated in his amendment. He showed how future dealing might be perfectly legitimate, that is, where the deal was made with the intention of an actual handling of the goods and where this handling would take place.

Mr. Angier said that he would be perfectly willing to have the amendment referred to the

Mr. Angier said that he would be perfected to the willing to have the amendment referred to the committee of the chamber of commerce, with committee the next session of the power to present it at the next session of the council or not, just as they thought proper. The amendment was so referred.

The ordinance as presented was then unanimously adopted.

CHIEF CONNOLLY'S BONFIRE.

Councilman Angier introduced a resolution which was a decided blow at Chief Connolly's recent action in burning a lot of captured gambling tools.

The ordinance read as follows:

The Mayor and General Council Ordain, That when any officer or member of the police force shall seize, or come into the possession of any article of personal property, which are important to be used as evidence, he shall not withhold the same from the owner longer than necessary for such purpose, nor for an unreasonable length of time; and if he shall do so, or fail or refuse to return such property to the owner upon demand, and after such lapse of time, on conviction thereof in the recorder's court, he shall be punished by a fine not to exceed $100, or imprisonment nor to exceed $30 days, and be dismissed from office.

In support of the passage of this ordinance, Mr. Angier said that he referred, of course, to the recent "silly and puerile exhibition of petty and party spite in the huge bonfire of gambling tools at the artesian well."

"Is a city like Atlanta," he said, "to become a party to such arrant nonsense and make herself the laughing stock of sensible people? The question involved is a big one. No power, not the president of the United States, has the right to destroy property without due process of law. A judge upon the supreme bench of Georgia said to me the day this affair occurred, that the courts could not for a minute tolerate such action, and if this furniture had value the courts would restore it to the owners.

for a minute tolerate such action, and if this furniture had value the courts would restore it to the owners.

"Such vandalism has only been equalled by Sherman, when he destroyed this city. We should consider this matter, and should realize that we are doing something, in allowing such action, which is totally unwarranted. Why, contraband of war must be submitted to judicial examination. This chief of police constitutes himself judge, jury and executioner, and does something which is a disgrace to our city. While we all abhor gambling, the means to suppress it may be as illegal and abhorrent as gambling itself. I think the ordinance should be adopted to prevent a repetition of this disgrace."

grace."

Mr. Mitchell thought it wrong to return contraband goods, and illustrated by asking if a lot of burglar tools would be returned to a burglar. He thought the authorities did right in destroying the property, and moved that the ordinance be tabled.

AGAINST THE ISSUE.

The proposed issue of bonds, for the purpose of building reads throughout the county, received a blow in the adoption of the following resolutions submitted by Mr. Angier:

Whereas, The city constitutes the greatest part of the county, and the rate of taxation and license fees is already sufficiently heavy, and to superimpose on them a bonded debt of half a million dollars would be too grievous a burden, without any adequate, corresponding benefits, the mayor and general council. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the state senator from this district, and our three members in the lower house, be carnestly requested to use all honorable efforts to defeat the proposed bill to saddle a debt of $500,000 on the county for the proposed purpose of macademizing the county roads, or issuing bonds for any part thereof. And, be it further

Resolved, That the clerk transmit certified copies of this resolution to our state senator and three members of the lower house.

In urging the adoption of these resolutions, Mr. Angier estimated the annual interest upon the $500,000 of bonds proposed to be issued, at $30,000, and the interest for the thirty years would be $900,000, making principal and interest nearly a million and a half of dollars. Of this, the city would pay by far the greater share.

The other members of the council thought the same, and the resolutions were unanimously adopted. THE WINE ROOMS.

The tax upon wine rooms will be the same for the coming year as it has been during the present. Twenty-two winerooms sent in applications for a renewal of their licenses. The batch was referred to the police committee.

THE HIDE DEALERS.

Mr. Angier introduced an amendment to the city ordinances relating to the hide stores. The proposed amendment was prepared by the board of health and had received the sanction of the sanitary committee. It provided "that dry hides, thoroughly cured and odorless, may be kept for sale in the city adjoining business houses; and that green hides, after being thoroughly salted outside the city limits, may also be kept in the city for sale and in houses adjoining business houses during the months of November, December, January, February and March. And provided further, that no dry or green hides shall be kept in the city limits if they do in fact amount to or may be adjudged a nuisance." This was unanimously adopted

The Gate City Railroad company, through Richard Peters, president, presented a communication to the effect that some time since it asked permission to extend its lines of road from the present terminus on Jackson street out Jackson street to the city limits. After making a careful survey the officers find that an extension out the Boulevard to the city limits would be much less expensive and would give more direct and convenient, approach to the exposition grounds than the other route. Permission is therefore asked to extend the lines over the nearer route. The petition was referred to the street committee.

The Atlanta and Edgewood street railroad asks permission to build and operate its roads as provided by its charter by using a dummy engine or other motive power on the Boulevard from Foster street north to the city limits. This communication took the same reference as that of the other road.

THE CITY'S SEWERS.

A communication was received from Mr. E.
F. Gould, who is building the new bank building on Decatur street. He cites the fact that there is no sewer into which he can drain his building, and asks that the Decatur street sewer be extended to Peachtree. Referred to sewer committee.

and Commissioner Howell, asked that the city make sewer connections for the new capitol from the corner of Mitchell and Washington streets to the main sewer on Loyd street. The petition went to the sewer committee.

THE COMMITTEE ON CLAIMS
:eported unfavorably upon the petition of Mrs. Chapman, widow of the late policeman, asking that the city pay the expenses of her husband's funeral. The unfavorable report was made because three months' pay had already been voted to Chapman during his illness. The council approved the report.

An adverse report was made to the petition of G. D. McDaniel for damages to a male caused by the runaway of the sanitary cart. Report adopted.

Street tax was refunded to W. L. Boyd, who showed that he had already paid the tax; and to O. W. Metcalf, who is over 54 years old.

AFFER WATER.

Mr. C. A. Collier, president of the Piedmont Exposition company, sent in a communication requesting that water mains be extended on Peachtree from the Kimball to the city limits. He stated that arrangements have been made to extend the mains from the city limits to the to extend the mains from the city limits to the Culpepper residence if the mains are extended to the city limits. It this is done the Piedmont Exposition company will extend the mains from the Culpepper place to the fair grounds. Referred to water committee.

The water committee reported adversely to Mr. Rice's resolution extending artesian water on Peachtree to Forest avenue. The council disagreed to the report, and adopted the resolution.

The item relative to taxing cotton, produce, and other exchanges was also stricken out. The tax upon peddlers who sell to registered dealers was made $10, and that of those selling to consumers $25. The tax upon fortune tellers and astrologers was increased from $50 to $100.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The salary of the assistant city attorney was, upon recommendation of the finance committee, fixed at $1,800 per year, beginning July 1, 1887, and extending to July 1, 1889.

Upon motion of Mr. Rice, it was ordered that 500 copies of the tax ordinance be printed.

Mr. Allen's amendment to the tax ordinance, to the effect that a tax of one dollar be assessed on all dealers who use alcohol in their compounds or preparations, when the per cent of alcohol used is in excess of ten per cent, was lost.

THE BOY DIED.

An Occurrence Which Has Cast Gloom Over Many Homes.

Linton Collier, an account of whose accident was published in THE CONSTITUTION, died yesterday morning between one and two o'clock. His death was not unexpected, indeed his medical attendants had given up all hope of his recovery. His death occurred at his home, No. 44 Alexander street. The little fellow passed away surrounded by relatives and friends, but the one he most wished to be with him at the close was his father. This father was in New York when the accident happened, and was immediately summoned home by telegraph. Mr. Collier did not reach the city until this morning at 6 o'clock, nearly five hours too late to close the eyes of his son. Mr. Collier was passionately attached to the boy, and when he was told of his death was terribly shocked. All that the most skillful physicians could do, supplemented by the loving ministrations of the members of the family, failed to avert death. Dr. Howell thinks that the wounds on his head, six in number, were what caused his death. The funeral services occurred yesterday at the residence at 4 o'clock, which were conducted by the Rev.W. F. Robinson. After the services at the house the body was taken on a special train to Oakland cemetery, being accompanied by a large crowd of sorrowing relatives and friends. The following young gentlemen acted as pall bearers: W. H. Chastine, W. B. Orr, William Craig, Eugene Parkins, Clifton Orr and John Sullivan. The deceased was a singularly bright and loveable boy. He was a pupil of the Boys' High school, and a great favorite with his classmates. Yesterday morning the pupils of the school met and took action on his death. There was a large attendance of the boys. Professor Slaton called the meeting to order, but at once An Occurrence Which Has Cast Gloom Over Many Homes

The following resolutions were introduced by R. D. McAllister, and unanimously adopted: Resolved, I. That we mourn the loss of our friend and classmate, Linton Collier.

2. That we will ever cherish the genial and accommodating spirit that always characterized his daily walks.

3. That we will emulate the kindness and courtesy of his life.

8. That we will emulate the kindness and courtesy of his life.

4. That we tender the bereaved parents, brothers and sisters of our friend and comrade, our sincerest and profoundest sympathies in their sorrow and desolation, and pray the Father of all mercies to soothe the afflicted hearts.

5. That we send a copy of these resolutions to the family of the deceased, and present a copy to the press for publication.

Professos W. M. Slaton spoke feelingly of the virtues of the deceased. Professos Slaton said that Linton Collier had distinguished himself the past year by his punctual, prompt attendance, by his uniform courtesy and kindness, and by his promising prospects of a successful and prosperous life. In the death of Linton, he felt that he had lost a personal friend, and sympathized deeply with the family in their terrible loss.

of the Northeastern railroad to enjoin the Richmond and Danville railroad from transferring aby part of the Northeastern or any property thereof, or to further encumber the road with debt, until the rights of all parties had been fully determined by the courts.

The matter was brought up before Hon. N. L. Hutchins, of the Western circuit in the shape of an injunction, and the judge passed upon the same at Lawrenceville yesterday. He issued an order in which he enjoins the transfer of any title or the delivery of any possession of any part of the road, until the hearing of the application for a permanent injunction has been had before him.

The judge does not interfere with the meeting of the stockholders of the road called for today in Athens, but on the contrary desires such meeting to take place, and a full and free discussion had, in order that as much light may be thrown upon this complicated matter, as it is possible to get. The whole question of legality will not be touched at all by the stockholders meeting.

The hearing of the application for a permanent injunction is set for next Friday.

important business. Commissioners Erwin, of Athens, and Trammell, of Dalton, arrived in the city last night, and will be on hand today. Commissioner Wallace, the chairman of the board, has been quite sick for several weeks, and may not be able to preside today. It is hoped, however, that he will be present.

The business before the commission will be the preparation of the regular semi-annual report the law requires it to make to the governor. The legislature meets two weeks from tomorrow, and the commission hopes to prepare its report beforehand, in order that the governor may be able to incorporate anything in it he may wish in his message to the general assembly. In addition to the report, there are some matters to be attended to that was left over from the last meeting. The regularly monthly meeting of the commission takes place next Tuesday, and it is probable that the commission may be in session until then.
